(United Nations), 2003 The world's freshwater resources are coming under growing pressure through such environmental hazards as human waste urbanization industrialization and pesticides The problems are exacerbated through drought in many parts of the world The improvement of the water quality itself and access to it have been major concerns for politicians and development agencies for over a decade First officially formulated at the Rio Earth Summit of 1992 they have been restated or expanded since then The UN Millennium Declaration of 2000 transformed general guidelines into specific targets

The international community pledged to halve by 2015 the proportion of people who are unable to reach or to afford safe drinking water and to stop the unsustainable exploitation of water resources by developing water management strategies at the regional national and local levels which promote both equitable access and adequate supplies Thus ten years after Rio it is time to take stock Based on the collective inputs of 23 United Nations agencies and convention secretariats this Report offers a global overview of the state of the world's freshwater resources It is part of an on going assessment process to develop policies and help with their implementation as well as to measure any progress towards achieving sustainable use of environmental settings Lake Titicaca Bolivia Peru Senegal river basin Senegal Mali Mauritania Guinea Seine Normandy

France Lake Peipsi Chudskoe Estonia Russia Ruhuna basin Sri Lanka Greater Tokyo region Japan and Chao Phraya Thailand

It assesses progress in 11 challenge areas including health food environment shared water resources cities industry energy risk management knowledge valuing water and governance Proposing methodologies and indicators for measuring sustainability it lays the foundations for regular system wide monitoring and reporting by the UN together with the development of standardized methodologies and data With its comprehensive maps glossary references and coverage of a
