- Stress Management:

PROSTATE The prostate is a small, walnut-sized gland that sits just below the bladder and in front of the rectum. It's the only organ in the male reproductive system that has no ducts. The prostate's job is to produce and secrete prostatic fluid, which is a component of semen. The fluid helps to nourish and protect sperm as they travel through the urethra and out of the body. The prostate is also responsible for controlling the flow of urine from the bladder. When the prostate becomes enlarged, it can block the urethra and cause urinary problems. This is why prostate cancer is often diagnosed through a PSA test, which measures the level of prostatic-specific antigen (PSA) in the blood. PSA levels can be elevated by a variety of factors, including prostate cancer, benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH), and prostatitis. Therefore, a PSA test alone cannot definitively diagnose prostate cancer. A digital rectal exam (DRE) and a biopsy are often used in conjunction with a PSA test to make a more accurate diagnosis. A DRE involves a doctor feeling the prostate through the rectum to check for any abnormalities. A biopsy involves taking a small sample of prostate tissue for examination under a microscope. If the biopsy results show cancer, the doctor will discuss treatment options with the patient. Treatment options for prostate cancer include surgery, radiation therapy, hormone therapy, and active surveillance. The choice of treatment depends on the stage of the cancer, the patient's overall health, and the patient's preferences. It's important to talk to your doctor about the risks and benefits of each treatment option.

Diagram of the Respiratory System

The diagram illustrates the human respiratory system. It shows the trachea (windpipe) leading down to the bronchi, which branch into the lungs. The lungs are shown in the chest cavity, with the heart positioned between them. The diaphragm is shown at the bottom of the chest cavity. The diagram is labeled with various parts of the respiratory system, including the trachea, bronchi, lungs, and diaphragm.

Key Features of the Respiratory System:

- Trachea: The windpipe, which carries air in and out of the lungs.
- Bronchi: The airways that branch from the trachea into the lungs.
- Lungs: The organs where gas exchange occurs. They are shown in the chest cavity, with the heart positioned between them.
- Diaphragm: The muscle at the bottom of the chest cavity that contracts and relaxes to move air in and out of the lungs.

Diagram Labels:

- Trachea
- Bronchi
- Lungs
- Diaphragm
