The Fund is a free nonprofit-backed program dedicated to helping students plan for pay for, addressing the cost of their degree, while preserving them for a successful financial future.

Getting denied financial aid can be a terrifying experience. College is an expensive endeavor, and any changes to a financial aid award can mean major changes to your ability to afford an education.

Luckily, when a financial aid crisis arises, there is always a backup plan: the financial aid appeal letter.

The financial aid appeal letter is your way of asking the financial aid office to reconsider their decision about your financial aid. Nothing is guaranteed—the financial aid office does not have to review your award simply because you wrote a letter. However, submitting an appeal can help them understand your situation.

There are many reasons why you might need to write a financial aid appeal letter. Here are a couple examples:

- A change in family income: Let's say one of your parents lost their job. Now, instead of having a household income of $60,000/year, you have a household income of $20,000. You don't have to wait until the next financial aid application to request that your current financial aid reflect this new change in income. You can write an appeal letter during the semester to request a re-evaluation of your financial aid.
- Bad grades: So, you didn't have a very good semester, and your financial aid has drastically changed due to your GPA falling below a certain threshold. Why did you perform poorly? Was there a death in the family? Did you have other circumstances that prevented you from performing better in your classes? An appeal letter is the best way to state your case.

There are dozens of other scenarios that could result in changed or denied financial aid. Regardless of what scenario you are experiencing, you'll want to
