a nonlinear shooting method and its application to nonlinear hindawi - May 10 2023

the simple shooting method is revisited in order to solve nonlinear two point bvp numerically the bvp of the type $\frac{d^2y}{dx^2} = f(x, y)$ with boundary conditions $y(0) = y_0$ and $y(1) = y_1$. The shooting method involves guessing an initial slope $y'(0) = s_0$ and then integrating the differential equation using a numerical method like the Runge-Kutta method to find $y(1)$. If $y(1) \neq y_1$, the initial slope s_0 is adjusted and the process is repeated until the solution $y(1)$ matches the boundary condition y_1 . The shooting method is particularly effective for problems where the differential equation is well-behaved and the solution is unique. It is also relatively easy to implement and can be parallelized. However, it can be less efficient than other methods for certain types of problems, such as those with multiple solutions or those that are stiff. In such cases, other methods like the finite difference method or the finite element method may be more appropriate.
