

PHONOLOGICAL awareness

Phonological awareness is being able to hear and work with the sounds in words. This skill is important for learning to read because it helps you understand how letters and sounds fit together.

What Are Phonemes?

Phonemes are the small sounds that make up words. For example, the word "cat" has three phonemes: /c/, /a/, and /t/. Every phoneme is a single sound that helps build a word. When you understand phonemes, you can read words more easily. Phonemes are the building blocks of words, and knowing how to hear and work with these sounds helps you read and write words more easily.

Reversal of Phonemes

Reversing phonemes means changing the order of the sounds in a word to make a new word. For example, if you take the word "cat" and reverse it, you get "tac". This is a fun game to play with words and sounds. It helps you hear how changing the order of sounds can make different words. Practicing this helps you get better at hearing and working with phonemes.

Phonemes Chaining

Phoneme chaining is when you change one letter at a time in a word to make a new word. For example, you can start with the word "cat" and change one letter at a time to make "bat", "bat", "bat", and so on. This helps you hear how changing one sound can make a new word. It also helps you understand how letters and sounds fit together.

unaccented SYLLABLES

What is an Unaccented Syllable?

A syllable is a part of a word that has one vowel sound. An unaccented syllable is a syllable that is not stressed when a word is spoken. For example, in the word "butter", the first syllable "but" is accented, and the second syllable "ter" is unaccented.

Examples of Unaccented Syllables

Examples of unaccented syllables are: "butter", "bicycle", "bathroom", "butterfly", "bicycle", "bathroom", "butterfly".

Unaccented Syllables are Important

Unaccented syllables are important for reading because they help you hear the whole word. If you only hear the accented syllable, you might not be able to read the word correctly.

Relationships IN A TEXT

Characters' Actions

Characters' actions are the things that characters do in a story. For example, a character might go to school, play a game, or go to bed. These actions help you understand the story and the characters.

Historical Events

Historical events are things that happened in the past. For example, the first airplane was invented in 1903. These events help you understand the world and the people who lived in the past.

Steps in Procedures

Steps in procedures are the things that you do to do something. For example, to make a sandwich, you need to get bread, put on the meat, and add the cheese. These steps help you understand how to do something.

Cause and Effect

Cause and effect are the things that happen because of something else. For example, if it rains, the ground gets wet. This is a cause and effect relationship. Understanding cause and effect helps you understand the world and the people who live in it.
