Pekkanen,2003-08-06 How do governments choose which industries to favor If governments are largely motivated by the national economic interest then industrial selection would be biased in favor of picking winners If on the other hand governments are motivated by an electoral and political logic as is usually assumed in mainstream political economy approaches then industrial choices would be skewed in favor of politically influential industries even if they are uncompetitive or declining At the core of this book is a methodology that pits these competing explanations against each other draws out their testable propositions and then uses three different approaches econometrics structured data analysis and case studies to ascertain whether one or the other explanation prevails in the celebrated case of postwar Japan The evidence which ranges from Japan s earliest efforts at technology catch up to present day policies of indigenizing space rockets shows that economic logic did in fact prevail across industries and over time despite ever present political pressures The most important point this study uncovers is that it is not just selection but deselection that has been the hallmark of Japan s trade and industrial policies over the postwar period
