Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office ,2007 Scientific American ,1895 Parallel Processing for Scientific Computing Michael A. Heroux,Padma Raghavan,Horst D. Simon,2006-01-01 Scientific computing has often been called the third approach to scientific discovery emerging as a peer to experimentation and theory Historically the synergy between experimentation and theory has been well understood experiments give insight into possible theories theories inspire experiments experiments reinforce or invalidate theories and so on As scientific computing has evolved to produce results that meet or exceed the quality of experimental and theoretical results it has become indispensable Parallel processing has been an enabling technology in scientific computing for more than 20 years This book is the first in depth discussion of parallel computing in 10 years it reflects the mix of topics that mathematicians computer scientists and computational scientists focus on to make parallel processing effective for scientific problems Presently the impact of parallel processing on scientific computing varies greatly across disciplines but it plays a vital role in most problem domains and is absolutely essential in many of them Parallel Processing for Scientific Computing is divided into four parts The first concerns performance modeling analysis and optimization the second focuses on parallel algorithms and software for an array of problems common to many modeling and simulation applications the third emphasizes tools and environments that can ease and enhance the process of application development and the fourth provides a sampling of applications that require parallel computing for scaling to solve larger and realistic models that can advance science and engineering This edited volume serves as an up to date reference for researchers and application developers on the state of the art in scientific computing It also serves as an excellent overview and introduction especially for graduate and senior level undergraduate students interested in computational modeling and simulation and related computer science and applied mathematics aspects
