Railway and Engineering Review ,1898      Learning-assisted Diagnosis and Control of Electric Distribution

Network Chaolong Zhang, Xiao Wang, Aihong Tang, Weihang Yan, David Gao, 2025-08-08 The digital transformation of modern power systems enables more robust and transparent system planning and operation This process is highly reliant on big data which is widely available through energy generation to utilization The distribution networks are exposed to high challenges due to the massive integration of renewables and electric vehicles at low voltages but opportunities do exist due to the widely available infrastructure for data collection and smart control at the distribution level For example the phase measurement unit PMU for better system observation in the transmission system has been extended to the distribution network where standard protocols are available for high precision data transmission in a sub second timescale Artificial intelligence AI technologies become the main enabler to utilize these data This provides revolutionary solutions covering fault diagnosis control and almost all aspects of modern electric power systems The values of AI in distribution networks are widely recognized especially for the increased complexity of distribution systems where active management and autonomous operation are urgently needed The typical mechanism based modeling and model based control lack adaptability under an evolving environment e g network topology changes that are more frequent at the distribution level However the existing AI technologies as well as the associated machine learning algorithms cannot be directly transplanted into the area of power systems To fulfill the strict technical requirements in power systems for security generalization capability interpretability out of sample performance robustness and reliability are the main issues to be addressed before their massive deployment Therefore this Research Topic aims to provide a contribution in line with this area of research i e innovative approaches and schemes for learning assisted diagnosis and control for the medium to low voltage distribution networks Original work focusing on the applications of state of art AI technologies in the power and energy related fields are invited Both high quality Original Research and Review Articles are welcome about the latest progress and potential research applications of the relevant areas with interests in modeling control monitoring and diagnosis of the distribution network using AI related techniques      Electrical Review ,1888      The Electrical Review ,1981      Call TV quiz shows Great Britain:

Parliament: House of Commons: Culture, Media and Sport Committee, 2007-01-25 Call TV quiz shows are an example of television programmes provided by commercial broadcasters in order to increase their revenue. The viewer watches the live broadcast then sends a text message or makes a premium rate telephone call in order to take part with the broadcaster keeping a proportion of the call revenue. The Culture Committee has decided to examine this development and whether some form of regulation is required since the programmes seem to be another means of gambling with some members of the public complaining about them. This report therefore has set out a number of recommendations as to how broadcasters and regulators should address this. The Committee states that there seems to be a lack of fairness and transparency throughout the process. For example players are generally not told that it is a matter of luck whether a call is connected to the studio and that the chances of getting through are very slim. Also the cost of calling is not always made as clear as it might be or the amount players might have to spend to win a prize. Primary responsibility for maintaining confidence in the Call TV quiz show format rests with the operating companies and the broadcasters. The Committee believes that the guidance drawn up by the two main regulators Ofcom and ICSTIS does not go far enough. The Committee also states that Call TV quiz shows should constitute gaming under the Gambling Act 2005 and the Culture Department and the Gambling Commission should consider this as a matter of urgency. Operators should have voluntarily introduced practices intended to help viewers who make repeated premium rate calls appreciate how much they are spending also some assessment of the addiction to participation in such shows should be undertaken. Viewers should be made aware that puzzles on Call TV quiz shows have a cryptic element and that Ofcom should make it obligatory to have games verified with a third party and solutions lodged with them to prevent underhand changes being made while the show is on air. Ofcom should also publish periodic reports on its monitoring of Call TV quiz programmes any practice of misleading viewers about call volumes or of blocking of calls would be unfair and fraudulent and should be punished under criminal law. The Committee recommends that broadcasters should be required to display some recent historical information about volume of incoming calls and the odds of being connected to the studio also that a single body Ofcom take responsibility for registering all complaints.
