

Business Ethics and Ethical Conflict Questions

1. Which of these is the most accurate statement of when an accountant should act, having identified a threat to ethical conduct?

- A. when there is a substantial threat to the profession or their firm?
- B. when there is a possibility of some professional liability?
- C. when there is anything other than an insignificant consequence?

2. Ethical frameworks can draw both on rules and on framework principles. Which of the following best expresses the complementary role of ethical rules and principles?

- A. Ethical rules outline the things you must do and the way you should do them, while framework principles provide guidance on things you ought to do but leave you to determine how to comply.
- B. Ethical rules provide for conduct that must be complied with in a particular way, while framework principles provide the reasons why standards and rules must be complied with.
- C. Ethical rules provide a clear means to identify what you must do, while framework principles provide the means to identify, evaluate and address ethical problems.

3. Which of the following statements are true?

- A. An accountant is under no duty to disclose the limitations of their expertise to the client.
- B. An accountant is only responsible for his or her own professional qualifications and training.
- C. An accountant may need to compromise the most precise attention to detail in preparing work in order to meet a reasonable deadline.

4. Ranjit is a management accountant, working in the finance department, who went on secondment to the procurement department for 2 months to help during a busy period. Ranjit returns from his secondment and is now back in the finance department. Part of Ranjit's responsibilities are to sign off on purchase orders based on the information supplied by procurement. He comes across a purchase order that included a large error. It was a purchased order raised by Ranjit.

Which of the following threats to objectivity is Ranjit exposed to?
