Nature And Spirit An Essay In Ecstatic Naturalism:

Nature and Spirit Robert Corrington, 2021 Nature and Spirit An Essay in Ecstatic Naturalism develops an enlarged conception of nature that in turn calls for a transformed naturalism. Unlike more descriptive naturalisms such as those by Dewey, Santayana, and Buchler, ecstatic naturalism works out of the fundamental ontological difference between nature naturing natura naturans and nature natured natura naturata. This difference underlies all other variations within a generic conception of nature. The spirit operates within a generic conception of nature. The spirit operates within a fragmented nature and has its own unique locations. Ecstatic naturalism does not eulogize spirit nor impose a process theodicy upon nature as a whole but carefully describes the ways in which spirit emerges from finite locations within the world. Methodologically, the text radically regrounds phenomenology so that it can work more closely with a metaphysics seeking the most generic forms of nature. The move from a transcendental phenomenology which rests upon a profound misconception of the parcel of a radicalized naturalism makes it possible to show how all orders of relevance are related to nature and to the spirit. This in turn relocates the human process with its dialectical tension between finitude and transcendence and places the self fully within the emergent structures of the community of interpreters as that community lives out of hope. The concept of worldhood is regrounded in pragmatic and semiotic terms, thus putting pressure on Heidegger's formulations. Peirce's pragmatic categorical structure is used to show how worldhood differs from any other order within the world. The correlation of the potencies of nature which are presemiotic and preordinal with the orders of the world itself is possible only through an ordinal phenomenology that remains attuned to the fundamental difference between nature naturing the potencies and nature natured the orders of the world. Finally, the text redefines the divine natures in the light of an ecstatic naturalism that sees God as an order within the world that experiences the fragmented quality of nature. Process theology is challenged for its inability to grasp the tensions between God and the encompassing. Four divine natures are laid bare as they relate to nature and to each other. The work concludes with a description of the divine life in the face of the encompassing.

Nature and Spirit Robert S. Corrington, 1992. Phenomenological descriptions are made of the human process and its struggles between its finite and transcendent dimensions. The self is located within both natural and interpretive i.e. hermeneutic communities and the semiotic implications of both types of community are detailed. The phenomenon of worldhood i.e. that which is not a world or within the world but which locates and encompasses all worlds is examined from the standpoint of a transformation of Heidegger's formulations. The pragmatic and semiotic dimensions of worldhood are defined in the context of an enlarged conception of nature. Finally, God's several dimensions are explored as they relate to each other and to the world within which they are often embedded. Process theology is challenged for its failure to explore what the author considers to be the fragmented yet self-transfiguring quality of the divine life.

BOOK JACKET A Semiotic Theory of Theology and Philosophy Robert S. Corrington, 2000-11-09. The concern of this work is with developing an alternative to standard categories in theology and philosophy especially in terms of how they deal with nature Avoiding the polemics of much contemporary reflection on nature it shows how we are connected to nature through the unconscious and its unique way of reading and processing signs Spinoza's key distinction between natura naturans and natura naturata serves as the governing framework for the treatise Suggestions are made for a post Christian way of understanding religion Robert S Corrington's work represents the first sustained attempt to bring together the fields of semiotics depth psychology pragmatism and a post Monotheistic theology of nature Its focus is on how signification functions in human and non human orders of infinite nature Our connection with the infinite is described in detail especially as it relates to the use of sign systems     Ecstatic Naturalism Robert S. Corrington,1994 Semiotic theory which has restricted its focus largely to human forms of significations is transformed by Robert S Corrington into a semiotics of nature itself Corrington situates the divide between nature naturing and nature natured within the contest of classical American pragmatism and postmodern psychoanalysis At the heart of this new metaphysics is an insistence that all signs participate in larger orders of meaning that are natural and religious Meanings embodied in nature point beyond nature to the mystery inherent in positioned codes and signs     A 21st Century Debate on Science and Religion Shiva Khaili,Fraser Watts,Harris Wiseman,2017-08-21 The progress of modern science and technology has led to remarkable insights into the nature of the universe and of human life These insights have challenged and transformed former traditional worldviews and narratives This book explores and addresses the challenges that arise at the interface of science and religion in the 21st century How does science affect the way that religion is perceived Do modern scientific findings confirm or invalidate the perspective of faith How does science lead religious persons to revise the way they understand their faith and its practices Is a mutually respectful and mutually beneficial dialogue possible between science and faith Drawing from many disciplines psychology theology philosophy history cognitive science education this book considers the crucial questions of how science and religion can help shape our worldviews and ways of life today     Religion and Atheism Anthony Carroll,Richard Norman,2016-11-25 Arguments between those who hold religious beliefs and those who do not have been at fever pitch They have also reached an impasse with equally entrenched views held by believer and atheist and even agnostic alike This collection is one of the first books to move beyond this deadlock Specially commissioned chapters address major areas that cut across the debate between the two sides the origin of knowledge objectivity and meaning moral values and the nature of the human person and the good life and the challenge of how to promote honest and fruitful dialogue in the light of the wide diversity of beliefs religious and otherwise Under these broad headings leading figures in the field examine and reflect upon Secular and religious humanism The idea of the sacred The vexed issue of science in both religious and secular accounts of knowledge Spirituality for the godless Non western perspectives on the atheism theism debate A key feature of the collection is a dialogue between Raymond Tallis and Rowan Williams former Archbishop of Canterbury Religion and Atheism Beyond the Divide will interest anyone who is concerned

In Our Own Image Wesley J. Wildman, 2017-12-15 In Our Own Image is a work of comparative philosophical theology It is a study of the roles anthropomorphism and apophaticism play in the construction of conceptual models of ultimate reality Leading scholar Wesley J. Wildman considers whether we create our ideas of God He offers a comparative analysis of three major classes of ultimacy models paying particular attention to the way those classes are impacted by anthropomorphism while tracing their relative strengths and weaknesses Wildman provides a constructive theological argument on behalf of an apophatic understanding of ultimate reality showing how this understanding subsumes challenges and relates ultimacy models from the three classes being compared He describes and compares competing ultimacy models fairly and sympathetically The conclusion is that all models cognitively break on the shoals of ultimate reality but that the ground of being class of models carries us further than the others in regard to the comparative criteria that matter most The Journal of Speculative
