Self-compensating Store Ejection Raymond R. Maestri, Leon H. Schindel, 1974 The report concerns the concept of a continuously adjustable ejector system which accounts for the aircraft flight condition and ejects a store with an initial angular rate and linear velocity that results in a safe repeatable predictable nearly ballistic trajectory throughout the aircraft store carriage envelope The concept is especially important in the supersonic regime where the aerodynamic forces in the disturbed flow field control the initial trajectory Modified author abstract American Negligence Cases Theodore Frank Hamilton, Walter James Eagle, 1898 American Negligence Cases, 1898 The Michigan Alumnus, 1955 In v 1 8 the final number consists of the Commencement annual The American State Reports Abraham Clark Freeman, 1898

Remodeling of cardiac passive electrical properties and susceptibility to ventricular and atrial arrhythmias

George E. Billman, 2015-09-25 The effective management of cardiac arrhythmias either of atrial or of ventricular origin remains a major challenge Sudden cardiac death due to ventricular tachyarrhythmias remains the leading cause of death in industrialized countries while atrial fibrillation is the most common rhythm disorder an arrhythmia that s prevalence is increasing and accounts for nearly one quarter of ischemic strokes the elderly population Yet despite the enormity of the problem effective therapeutic interventions remain elusive In fact several initially promising antiarrhythmic agents were found to increase rather than decrease mortality in patients recovering from myocardial infarction The question then is what went wrong why have these interventions proven to be so ineffective An obvious answer is the drugs were designed to attack the wrong therapeutic target Clearly targeting single ion channels using either isolated ion channels or single myocytes preparations has proven to be less than effective What then is the appropriate target It is well established that cardiac electrical properties can vary substantially between single cells and intact preparations One obvious example is the observation that action potential duration is much longer in isolated cells as compared to multi cellular preparations or intact hearts Due to the low electrical resistance between adjacent myocytes the cells act in coordinated fashion producing electrotonic interdependence between neighboring cells Myocardial infarction and or acute ischemia provoke profound changes in the passive electrical properties of cardiac muscle In particular electrotonic uncoupling of the myocytes disrupts the coordinated activation and repolarization of cardiac tissue The resulting compensatory changes in ionic currents decrease cardiac electrical stability increasing the risk for life threatening changes in the cardiac rhythm Thus the electrical properties of myocardial cells must be considered as a unit rather than in isolation It is the purpose of this Research Topic to evaluate the largely neglected relationship between changes in passive electrical properties of cardiac muscle and arrhythmia formation Wisconsin Statutes of 1898 Wisconsin, 1906 U.S. Government Research Reports, 1959
