The Strengths Perspective in Social Work Practice Dennis Saleebey,1992 The provision of public goods such as education electricity health sanitation and water used to be regarded as primarily the responsibility of governments but in the 1980s privatization of such services spread and reliance on market mechanisms instead of governments became common in many parts of the world including developing countries The record of the past twenty five years of market led development however has not been encouraging Not only has it failed to improve public services significantly but it has also undermined democratic institutions and processes reproduced authoritarian relations of power and suppressed alternatives made possible by an increasing global acceptance of the importance of economic and social rights In Limiting Resources LaDawn Haglund seeks an understanding of public goods that can better serve the needs of people in developing countries today Haglund critiques the narrow conception of public goods used in economics which tends to limit the range of resources considered public and proposes an expanded conception drawing from multiple disciplines that incorporates issues of justice inclusion and sustainability She then uses case studies of electricity and water provision in Central America to illuminate the conditions for success and the causes of failure in constructing adequate mechanisms for the supply of public goods She follows with an analysis of political conflicts over privatization that reveals how neoliberal policies have made effective state action difficult The book concludes with suggestions for ways in which this reformulated conception of public goods can be applied to promote justice sustainability and economic and social rights in developing countries The New York Times Book Review ,1985 Presents extended reviews of noteworthy books short reviews essays and articles on topics and trends in publishing literature culture and the arts Includes lists of best sellers hardcover and paperback Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,2001-06 Bowker's Complete Video Directory, 1998 ,1998 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,2001
