with rich information on Southeastern Europe edited here for the first time is the starting point of this extraordinary microbiography of a family's intense struggle for manoeuvring a changing world disrupted by competition, betrayal and colonialism. This volume recovers the Venetian life stories of Ottoman subjects and the crucial role of translation in negotiating a shared but fragile Mediterranean. Stefan Han examines an interpreter's translational practices of the self and recovers the wider Mediterranean significance of the early modern Balkan contact zone. Offering a novel conversation between translation studies, Mediterranean studies and the history of life writing, this volume argues that dragomans' practices of translation, border crossing and mobility were key to their experiences and performances of the self. This book is an indispensable reading for the history of the early modern Mediterranean self narratives, Venice, the Ottoman Empire and Southeastern Europe as well as the history of translation. Han presents a truly fascinating narrative, a microhistory full of insights and rich perspectives.
