Miga and Foreign Investment Ibrahim F. I. Shihata, 1988 Chapters Shihata, 2023-10-20 The unique experience of the author in supervising the World Bank's efforts to create the Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency is detailed in Part I of this book which provides a case study for the successful preparation of a complex multilateral convention in record time The book also provides an in depth analysis of the operational and institutional aspects of MIGA relating them to the broader legal and economic issues concerning international investment flows Part II deals with both MIGA's guarantee and non guarantee operations It covers in detail the different aspects of political risk insurance as well as the advisory and promotional services needed to encourage greater flows of capital and technology across national boundaries and towards developing countries in particular Part III deals with three major institutional and policy issues which caused the greatest controversies in MIGA's preparatory work and raised questions that go beyond MIGA's concerns These include the standards that apply to foreign investment settlement of disputes and the organizational and voting structures of international financial institutions This book should be of direct interest to a broad array of researchers and practitioners in the fields of international development foreign investment international law political risk insurance and international financial organizations The topicality of its subject and the prominence of its author add to the importance of the book which is likely to remain the most authoritative in its field for many years to come MIGA and Foreign Direct Investment Gerald T. China and the Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency Yushu Feng, 1999 May 1997 In developing countries with little foreign direct investment FDI the Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency MIGA can serve as a catalyst for more such investment In China which now attracts one third of all FDI in developing countries MIGA should perhaps help screen that investment and set up demonstration projects to improve the quality and sustainability of FDI The Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency MIGA established in 1988 is part of the World Bank Group Its mandate is to promote foreign investment in its member countries by providing political risk insurance and technical assistance to promote investment In developing this case study of China's evolving relationship with MIGA Feng asked Why did China decide to seek membership in MIGA What was the outcome of the relationship between China and MIGA How has that relationship affected economic and legal reform in China and the country's integration with the multilateral investment insurance system How can MIGA strengthen its role And how can MIGA prevent potential claims to its portfolio in China MIGA's comparative advantages are its international experience in underwriting and operating its portfolio its neutral position and approach its mediation and legal advice and the fact that its guarantee portfolio is unaffected by bilateral relations Feng suggests that in China MIGA should screen foreign direct investment FDI not just encourage it because some FDI in China has been of poor quality with little transfer of skills and technology Some local partners have conceded too many discounts to foreign investors without considering the cost of key assets such as land and machinery Some foreign investors have taken advantage of local officials eagerness for foreign capital pressuring them to grant guarantees they should not grant and to allow unacceptable levels of environmental pollution in industry China receives one third of all FDI in developing countries To continue attracting such investment it must design a rule based legal system governing FDI making its rules and regulations more transparent uniform and consistent with international practice As a neutral third party MIGA could make policy recommendations that authorities might consider and accept such as policies designed to encourage less investment in labor intensive firms and more in high tech industries This paper a product of the Office of the Vice President and General Counsel Legal Affairs and Claims MIGA is part of a larger effort in the Bank Group to promote foreign investment in its member countries The paper was produced while the author was a visiting research fellow at the Bank
