Flexible Ridesharing Volker Handke, Helga Jonuschat, 2012-12-14 Individual mobility is one of the most important needs of modern society and an important link between private public and economic life In contrast transport also entails severe environmental and social burdens foiling current efforts for sustainable development As the main source of CO2 emissions transport is a prominent driver for climate change and individual car traffic is responsible for nearly a third of the total energy consumption However we have to consider that many commuters feel indeed very dependent on their car Here ridesharing promises to contribute to environmental protection while still offering individual mobility Although ridesharing options have been discussed since many years internet and smartphones provide completeley new opportunities to find ridesharing partners today Thus this book deals with current efforts on implementing flexible internet and phone based ridesharing services With a main focus on the users perspective their demands and acceptance limits we aim to explore success factors for non profit but also commercial ridesharing concepts
