Metalepsis Translation Greek:

Narratology and Interpretation Jonas Grethlein, Antonios Rengakos, 2009 The categories of classical narratology have been successfully applied to ancient texts in the last two decades but in the meantime narratological theory has moved on. In accordance with these developments Narratology and Interpretation draws out the subtler possibilities of narratological analysis for the interpretation of ancient texts. The contributions explore the heuristic fruitfulness of various narratological categories and show that in combination with other approaches such as studies in deixis, performance studies and reader response theory narratology can help to elucidate the content of narrative form. Besides exploring new theoretical avenues and offering exemplary readings of ancient epic, lyric, tragedy and historiography the volume also investigates ancient predecessors of narratology.

Nonnus of Panopolis in Context III, 2020-11-30 Nonnus of Panopolis 5th c AD the most important Greek poet of Late Antiquity is best known for his Dionysiaca a grand epic that gathers together all myths associated with Dionysus god of wine and mysteries. The poet also authored the Paraphrase of St John's Gospel which renders the Fourth Gospel into sophisticated hexameter verse. This volume edited by Filip Doroszewski and Katarzyna Jadowska brings together twenty six essays by eminent scholars that discuss Nonnus' cultural and literary background, the literary techniques and motifs used by the poet as well as the composition of the Dionysiaca and the exegetical principles applied in the Paraphrase. As such the book will significantly deepen our understanding of literary culture and religion in Late Antiquity.

Emotions and Narrative in Ancient Literature and Beyond, 2022-04-25 Emotions are at the core of much ancient literature from Achilles' heartfelt anger in Homer's Iliad to the pangs of love of Virgil's Dido. This volume applies a narratological approach to emotions in a wide range of texts and genres. It seeks to analyze ways in which emotions such as anger, fear, pity, joy, love, and sadness are portrayed. Furthermore, using recent insights from affective narratology, it studies ways in which ancient narratives evoke emotions in their readers. The volume is dedicated to Irene de Jong for her groundbreaking research into the narratology of ancient literature.

Metalepsis Sebastian Matzner, Gail Trimble, 2020-08-28 Metalepsis is a term from classical rhetoric but in the twentieth century it was re-framed more broadly as a crossing of the boundaries that separate distinct narrative worlds. This modern notion of metalepsis introduced by Gérard Genette has so far largely been theorized on the basis of examples from post-modern novels and films. Yet metalepsis has a much greater potential to address all sorts of transgressions between worlds or levels not only in post-modern but also pre-modern literature. This volume explores metalepsis in classical antiquity considering questions such as if metalepsis consists fundamentally in the breaking down of barriers, what sort of barriers and what sort of transgressions can the concept be fruitfully applied to? Can it be used within approaches other than narratology? Does metalepsis require recognisable levels of reality and fictionality and if so what role might be played by other planes such as the past, the mythical or the divine? What form does metalepsis take in less obviously narrative genres such as lyric poetry? And how should it be understood in visual media Reflecting on these questions sheds new light on important dynamics in ancient texts and advances literary theory by probing how explorations of ancient metalepsis might change refine or extend our understanding of the concept itself

Byzantine Hermeneutics and Pedagogy in the Russian North Robert Romanchuk,2007-12-29 The Kirillov Monastery at White Lake in the far north of the Muscovite state was home to the greatest library and perhaps the only secondary school in all of medieval Russia. This volume reconstructs the educational activities of the spiritual fathers and heretofore unknown teachers of that monastery. Drawing on extensive archival research, published records and scholarship from a range of fields, Robert Romanchuk demonstrates how different habits of reading and interpretation at the monastery answered to different social priorities. He argues that spiritual and worldly studies were bound to the monastery's two main forms of social organization: semi-hermitic and communal. Further, Romanchuk contextualizes such innovative phenomena as the editing work of the monk Efrosin and the monastery's strikingly sophisticated library catalogue against the development of learning at Kirillov itself in the fifteenth century, moving the discussion of medieval Russian book culture in a new direction. The first micro-historical ethnology of reading in the Early Slavic field, Byzantine Hermeneutics and Pedagogy in the Russian North, will prove fascinating to western medievalists, Byzantinists, Slavists and book historians.

This book examines the past and present of the English parish system and proposes a new way of structuring the church in England rooted in the Anglo-Saxon world. The English parish is in a state of crisis. Ideally suited to the static agricultural hierarchical society in which it developed, it has become a severe impediment to the Church's work today. It needs to change. In this fascinating and insightful book, Nick Spencer explores the parish's past, present and future. He shows that rather than being synonymous with English Christianity, the parish was a comparatively late arrival on the scene and one whose main roots were economic and social rather than ecclesiastical. He goes on to explain why the parish is now singularly inappropriate for modern ministry before proposing a genuine alternative based on the system of Anglo-Saxon minster churches out of which parishes grew.
