Narrative Development In Young Children Gesture Imagery And Cohesion:

Narrative Development in Young Children Elena Terry Levy, David McNeill, 2015 As children begin to use language in early childhood they produce increasingly large units of coherent speech including narrative descriptions of events This book examines the process of narrative development in young children focusing on the development of cohesion the use of speech and gesture to create coherent perspectives on events Surveying early narrative development in which gesture plays an integral part the book explores the development of cohesive clause linking devices during the period from age two to three Illustrated with longitudinal cases studies the book examines the crib talk of two year old Emily and compares it to the discourse patterns of storybooks and nursery rhymes and to her father s pre bedtime routines In a second case study the authors trace the changing relationships between speech and gesture in the spontaneous narratives of two year old Ella This book will be invaluable to students and researchers in language acquisition developmental psychology and gesture studies

Blomberg, Monika Boruta-Żywicznyńska, 2024-02-15 Pantomime is a unique form of communication which we improvise on the fly to transmit information when unable to use language for example during intercultural contacts or when the use of language is blocked or constrained as in the case of some medical conditions or the game of charades Pantomimic communication has been investigated from a number of perspectives including neuropsychological developmental and gesture research Recently pantomime has come under the attention of evolutionary linguistics as a strong candidate for a precursor of verbal communication The volume Perspectives on pantomime evolution development interaction brings together authors who are at the forefront of these studies which challenge the notion that pantomime is merely a fallback mode of expression This multidisciplinary journey traverses language evolution cognitive science cognitive semiotics sign language linguistics psychology and gesture studies to unveil the profound role that pantomime plays in human communication Is the Language Faculty Non Linguistic? Umberto Ansaldi, N. J. Enfield, 2016-08-15 A line of research in cognitive science over several decades has been dedicated to finding an innate language specific cognitive system a faculty which allows human infants to acquire languages natively without formal instruction and within short periods of time In recent years this search has attracted significant controversy in cognitive science generally and in the language sciences specifically Some maintain that the search has had meaningful results though there are different views as to what the findings are ranging from the view that there is a rich and rather specific set of principles to the idea that the contents of the language faculty are while specifiable in fact extremely minimal But other researchers rigorously oppose the continuation of this search arguing that decades of effort have turned up nothing The fact remains that the proposal of a language specific faculty was made for a good reason namely as an attempt to solve the vexing puzzle of language in our species Much work has been developing to address this and specifically to look for ways to characterize the language faculty as an emergent phenomenon i e not as a dedicated language specific system but as the emergent outcome of a set of uniquely human but not specifically linguistic factors in combination A number of theoretical and empirical approaches are being developed in order to account for the great puzzles of language language processing language usage language acquisition the nature of grammar and language change and diversification This research topic aims at reviewing and exploring these recent developments and establishing bridges between these young frameworks as well as with the traditions that have come before The goal of this Research Topic is to focus on current developments in what many regard as a paradigm shift in the language sciences In this Research Topic we want to ask If current explicit proposals for an innate dedicated faculty for language are not supported by data or arguments how can we solve the problems that UG was proposed to solve Is it possible to solve the puzzles of language in our species with an appeal to causes that are not specifically linguistic

Individual Differences in Second/Foreign Language Speech Production: Multidisciplinary Approaches and New Sounds Peijian Paul Sun,Boping Yuan,Xun Yan,Jimin Kahng,2023-09-01 Second foreign language L2 speech production is a complex process requiring individuals combined efforts to utilize various processing components such as conceptualiser formulator and articulator Since the publication of Pim Levelt s book Speaking From Intention to Articulation in 1989 a considerable number of studies have examined L2 speech production in the field of neuroscience with a particular focus on the link between speech perception and speech production Undeniably a neurolinguistic examination of speech production can enrich our understanding of how human brains compute linguistic information at a cognitive level However it is insufficient by only focusing on the neurocognitive dimension of speech production given that individuals speech production can be subject to various individual differences factors either cognitively affectively or socio culturally It is therefore necessary to move beyond the neurocognitive understanding of speech production by taking every possible perspective into consideration Individual difference as an umbrella term covers psychological traits personal characteristics cognitive and emotional components that distinguish learners from each other Given that individual difference factors can reveal disparities in L2 learning and performance among learners such factors have attracted researchers growing interest concerning their influences on L2 speech processing their relationships with L2 speech performance and their contributions to L2 speech development Nevertheless our understanding of L2 speech production is not only insufficient compared to other L2 skills such as writing and reading but also limited to the neurocognitive account of L2 speech production More research therefore is in urgent need to uncover the influence of various individual differences factors on L2 speech production from multidisciplinary perspectives      Unifying Causality and Psychology Gerald Young, 2016-05-17 This magistral treatise

Iverson, Susan Goldin-Meadow, 1998-03-24 Imagine a child explaining a conservation judgment by saying That one s wider while indicating the height of a glass with his hand Now consider an adult saying She chased him while brandishing an imaginary umbrella in her hands In both of these examples information different from that conveyed by speech is communicated by movements of the hands These movements of the hands that co occur with speech gestures are the subject of this volume of the New Directions for Child Development series Although gesture has always been considered relevant to talk it has usually been seen as a stream separate from speech one that can reflect the attitudes and feelings of speakers but that is not centrally involved in language It was not until recently that gesture became a legitimate interest of language researches The chapters herein focus on the spontaneous gestures that accompany speech especially the speech of children Together they confirm that gesture is a robust and integral part of communication that can provide unique insights into the mind This is the 79th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Child Development For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals section      Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts ,2008-02      Current Index to Journals in Education ,1995      Comprehensive
