Narrative Residence Ireland Cambridge Collection:

The Commercial Lives of Irish Women, 1850-1922 Antonia Hart,2025-10-14 This book examines Irish women's lives in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries from a new angle investigating how they inherited, bought or started up businesses. Some guided their operations to impressive profit and growth while others coped with devastating failure. The many and varied primary sources which inform Antonia Hart's research place all these businesswomen in public-facing roles in commercial environments making economic decisions and operating with autonomy which they sought out and claimed. These were not unusual women. They were present in the main streets of towns and cities their businesses both visible and unsurprising to passers by. Women's businesses mattered. They enabled employees both women and men to earn their livings. They paid fees for professional services to accounting and legal firms. They contributed to the local and national economies. They provided training and sometimes accommodation for apprentices. Women's businesses mattered in the credit economy not only in their extension of credit for goods and services but also in the form of collateralised loans from the pawnbroker's counter while the Dublin pawnbrokers also contributed an annual sum to the city policing budget. In the context of well-ventilated ideas about what a woman should be many girls grew up seeing their teachers, mothers, sisters and neighbours bring pragmatism and creativity into commercial lives. This book shows how private realities diverged from public ideals and describes for the first time a robust and intriguing national heritage of Irish female entrepreneurship.

Narrative of a Residence in Ireland during the Summer of 1814, and That of 1815 Anne Plumptre,2019-07-04 In this 1817 work Anne Plumptre describes the landscape, the political state of Ireland and the nature of its people.
