Nation Immigration And Environmental Security:

Nation, Immigration, and Environmental Security J. Urban, 2008-05-12 Using the lens of postcolonial feminism and with particular focus on immigration across the U S across Mexico border this book explores the processes by which security threats are identified and interpreted and thus the relationship between national civilizational and environmental security within mainstream environment security discourse in the United States Another distinctive element of the book is that its focus on the broader discourse of environmental security and immigration examining the articulation of environmental security concerns over immigration across U S institutions such as the media the state NGOs and academia to unpack the ways these threats are identified and interpreted The Politics of Blame Jessica LeAnn Urban, 2004

A New Kind of Containment, 2009-01-01 This book addresses containment as it relates to interlocking discourses around the War on Terror as a global effort and its link to race and sexuality within the United States The project emerged from the recognition that the events of 11 September 2001 prompted new efforts at containment with both domestic and international implications

Climate Change and Securitization of Migration Sonali Narang, 2017-10-04 Master s Thesis from the year 2011 in the subject Earth Science Geography Geopolitics Panjab University language English abstract Human beings have always migrated in search of better opportunities and better life Migrations are also well tested strategies followed by various communities to adapt to various calamities and disasters Most of civilizations e g ancient Egyptian and Indus Valley civilizations have come up as a result of people migrating to river valleys It was only with the emergence of modern nation states system particularly after the treaty of Westphalia that new notion of legality and illegality got attached to the process of migration boundaries became rigid and exclusive and the flows of people became an issue of Others and Othering In short the history of mobility is much longer than the history of Westphalian territoriality and borders In the present era climate change is becoming the defining factor in human migration The current dominant geopolitical narratives and framings of climate change tend to focus on the impacts of climate change on potential drivers of conflict such as population movements border disputes and access to food water energy and other scarce resources It is against the backdrop of a whirlpool of highly imaginative and alarmist geographies of a catastrophic climate change that a new and highly contested concept of climate refugee has emerged Those who are forced to leave their native land by the global climate change are now described as climate migrants for want of a better term Millions of people around the globe are said to be at risk of displacement due to climate change being forced to leave their homelands temporarily or permanently It is believed that nine out of every ten disasters are somehow related to climate change It has become an accepted fact among the international community that climate change is going to result in large number of displacement The Inter Governmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC has minced no words in warning that The impacts of climate change on Asia will place additional stress on socioeconomic and physical systems A further demographic response will come about through the risk of extreme events on human settlements If the incidence and magnitudes of events such as droughts and coastal floods increase there could be large scale demographic responses for example through migration IPCC Working Group 2 2007 Border Walls Gone Green John Hultgren, 2015-10-15 How is it that self identified environmental progressives in America can oppose liberalizing immigration policies Environmentalism is generally assumed to be a commitment of the political left and restrictionism a commitment of the right As John Hultgren shows the reality is significantly more complicated American environmentalists have supported immigration restrictions since the movement first began in the late 1800s and anti immigration arguments continue to attract vocal adherents among contemporary mainstream and radical greens Border Walls Gone Green seeks to explain these seemingly paradoxical commitments by examining what is actually going on in American debates over the environmental impacts of immigration It makes the case that nature is increasingly being deployed as a form of walling which enables restrictionists to subtly fortify territorial boundaries and identities without having to revert to cultural and racial logics that are unpalatable to the political left From an environmental point of view the location of borders makes little sense the Mexican landscape near most border crossings looks exactly like the landscape on the American side And the belief that immigrants are somehow using up the nation's natural resources and thereby accelerating the degradation of the environment simply does not hold up to scrutiny So Hultgren finds the well intentioned efforts of environmentalists to sustain America are also sustaining the idea of the nation state and in fact serving to reinforce exclusionary forms of political community How then should socially conscious environmentalists proceed Hultgren demonstrates that close attention to the realities of transnational migration can lead to a different brand of socio ecological activism one that could be our only chance to effectively confront the powerful forces producing ecological devastation and social injustice Climate Change as a Reason for Asylum. A just Claim?, 2020-11-25 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2020 in the subject Politics Other International Politics Topics grade 1.5 University of Rostock language English abstract The verdict of the UN Human Rights Committee poses the issue of a potential entitlement to asylum for humans experiencing climate induced displacement Thus this thesis is gonna examine this rather new topic of the political science the future forced migration in the context of climate change and its consequences for the receiving countries and their legal systems Consequently for one thing in this thesis it will be tried to point out the causal correlation of climate change and migration and moreover on this basis tried to undertake reflections regarding a potential need for reformation of national and international refugee and asylum law in order to protect the affected people Since justice is highly important for social cooperation and also currently being tested by not only the global resource scarcity and its resulting conflicts but also as shall be shown with this thesis by the that very human induced climate change the focus of this work shall not be put on the potential implementation of climate refugees into the law of nations but rather on the more philosophical question of justification regarding a potential asylum for the prospective victims of climate change The leading question of this examination is thus gonna be if the claim to asylum due to the persecution through human induced climate change is a just claim or just a claim Because the abstract term of justice and its concepts which vary depending on the author could fill a thesis on its own this work will use the specific theory of justice of political philosopher John Rawls and thus will in pursuit of the main goal to concretely judge the obligation of states towards climate refugees on basis of an abstract justice term outline his theory of justice as fairness
