National Evaluation of Early Reading First. Final Report to Congress. NCEE 2007-4007 Russell Jackson, Ann McCoy, Carol Pistorino, Anna Wilkinson, John Burghardt, Melissa Clark, Christine Ross, Peter Schochet, Paul Swank, 2007. The No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act of 2001 created the Early Reading First (ERF) program to enhance teacher practices, instructional content, and classroom environments in preschools and to help ensure that young children start school with the skills needed for academic success. This report to Congress describes the impacts of the Early Reading First program on the language and literacy skills of children and on the instructional content and practices in preschool classrooms. The main findings of the national evaluation of ERF show that the program had positive, statistically significant impacts on several classroom and teacher outcomes and on one of four child outcomes measured. The program had no effect on children's phonological awareness or oral language. This report contains an executive summary and eight chapters: 1. Introduction and Study Background; 2. Study Design; 3. Characteristics of Participating Children and Families; 4. Characteristics of Programs Receiving ERF Funding; 5. Professional Development for Early Reading Teachers. NCEE Evaluation Brief 2009-4055 Institute of Education Sciences (ED), National Center for Education Evaluation and Regional Assistance, 2009 A recent national study of state and local No Child Left Behind activities indicated that 80 percent of elementary teachers reported participating in 24 hours or less of professional development on reading instruction during the 2003-2004 school year and summer Reading and professional development experts are concerned that this is not intensive enough to be effective and that it does not focus enough on subject matter knowledge To help states and districts make informed decisions about professional development to improve reading instruction the U S Department of Education commissioned the study of early reading professional development to examine the impact of two research based interventions for reading instruction One was an eight day institute and seminar series that began in the summer of 2005 and continued through much of the 2005-06 school year The second was the same institute series plus in school coaching The study was implemented in 90 schools in six districts 270 teachers and about 5,500 students with equal numbers of schools randomly assigned in each district to the institute group the institute plus coaching group or the control group which received the usual professional development offered by the district Although research based professional development for early reading teachers increased their knowledge of reading content and recommended instructional practices and their use of one of those practices explicit instruction findings did not indicate improved student reading achievement Contains 3 figures For the full report The Impact of Two Professional Development Interventions on Early Reading Instruction and Achievement NCEE 2008-4030 see ED502700
