Mass Media and Society James Dermot Halloran,1974      Media support and development communication in a world of change Manfred Oepen,1995      Media and Politics in Transition Jan Servaes,Rico Lie,1997

The Future of Work and Quality in the Information Society ,2004 Explores the potential impact of the information society and information technology in the media culture and graphical sector Focuses on the effects on employment the quality of work and quality of the product working conditions gender equity and labour management relations      Brand Machines, Sensory Media and Calculative Culture Sven Brodmerkel,Nicholas Carah,2016-11-10 This study argues that the defining feature of contemporary advertising is the interconnectedness between consumer participation and calculative media platforms It critically investigates how audience participation unfolds in an algorithmic media infrastructure in which brands develop media devices to codify process and modulate human capacities and actions With the shift from a broadcast to an interactive media system advertisers have reinvented themselves as the strategic interface between computational media systems and the lived experience and living bodies of consumers Where once advertising relied predominantly on symbolic appeals to affect consumers it now centres on the use of computational devices that codify monitor analyse and control their behaviours Advertisers have worked to stimulate and harness consumer participation for several generations Consumers undertook the productive work of making brands a part of their cultural identities and practices With the emergence of a computational mode of advertising consumer participation extends beyond the expressive activity of creating and circulating meaning It now involves making the lived experience and the living body available to the experimental capacities of media platforms and devices In this mode of advertising brands become techno cultural processes that integrate calculative and cultural functions Brand Machines Sensory Media and Calculative Culture conceptualises and theorises these significant changes in advertising It takes consumer participation and its interconnectedness with calculative media platforms as the fundamental aspect of contemporary advertising and critically investigates how advertising consumer participation and technology are interrelated in creating and facilitating lived experiences that create value for brands

Information and Public Choice Roumeen Islam,2008 The contributors in the book raise awareness among policymakers researchers and NGOs working on transparency and governance about the key role the media industry plays in economic and political markets They also address market constraints that affect media content and the environment in which media companies operate in developing countries The articles in this volume are meant to provide some new evidence and a good summary of previous research on how media reporting affects individual choices and outcomes Some of them also address the regulatory framework under which media companies operate and the goals of regulation Together these articles should draw attention to an underresearched but important area of economics      Regional Profile of the Information Society in the Arab Region ,2013
