Digital and Media Management

Tarun Jindal, 2025-02-20. Digital and Media Management serves as a vital guide through today's rapidly shifting media landscape where traditional and digital platforms converge. This book provides an in-depth look at strategies, challenges, and opportunities in the evolving world of media management, offering a comprehensive toolkit for professionals and newcomers alike. We begin with core concepts tracing the evolution of media management and highlighting essential principles and challenges faced by media managers. Covering traditional sectors like print, broadcast, and film, readers gain insights into the business models, editorial processes, and distribution strategies that drive these industries. As the focus shifts to digital media, we explore social media content creation and digital marketing. Practical examples and case studies illustrate how media organizations can harness digital tools to engage audiences, monetize content, and maintain a competitive edge. Emphasizing content management systems (CMS), we provide actionable guidance for streamlining digital workflows and optimizing content strategies. With a dedicated section on strategic management, readers also learn to develop adaptable strategies, navigate legal considerations, and harness technology innovations like data analytics and AI.

Digital and Media Management equips readers with the insights and strategies necessary to succeed in the modern media landscape.

Mass Media

James B. Martin, 2002. Mass media has become an integral part of the human experience. News travels around the world in a split second, affecting people in other countries in untold ways. Although being on top of the news may be good at least for news junkies, mass media also transmits values or the lack thereof, condenses complex events and thoughts to simplified sound bites, and often ignores the essence of an event or story. The selective bibliography gathers the books and magazine literature over the previous ten years while providing access through author, title, and subject indexes.

Critical Media Studies

Brian L. Ott, Robert L. Mack, 2009-08-24. Critical Media Studies is a state-of-the-art introduction to media studies that demonstrates how to think critically about the power and influence of the media. Provides extensive case study material, including exercises and media labs in each chapter to encourage student participation. Draws on examples from print, broadcast, and new media, including advertising, music, film, television, video games, and the internet. Accompanied by a website with supplementary material, additional case studies, test banks, PowerPoint slides, and a guide for professors.

Nedret Kuran Burçoğlu,2000 Black Women and Popular Culture VaNatta S. Ford,Adria Y. Goldman,Alexa A. Harris,Natasha R. Howard,2014-07-30 With the emergence of popular culture phenomena such as reality television blogging and social networking sites it is important to examine the representation of Black women and the potential implications of those images messages and roles Black Women and Popular Culture The Conversation Continues provides such a comprehensive analysis Using an array of theoretical frameworks and methodologies this collection features cutting edge research from scholars interested in the relationship among media society perceptions and Black women The uniqueness of this book is that it serves as a compilation of hot topics including ABC s Scandal Beyonc s Visual Album and Oprah s Instagram page Other themes have roots in reality television film and hip hop as well as issues of gender politics domestic violence and colorism The discussion also extends to the presentation and inclusion of Black women in advertising print and digital media

Seattle Journal for Social Justice ,2004 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,2009 Women in Popular Culture Marian Meyers,2008 Following upon the success of her book Mediated Women Representations in Popular Culture the author s latest anthology takes a new look at a wide range of contemporary images of women within the media to examine the meanings behind the representations of women in popular culture This book explores what representation of women says about their positions in society the factors that shape representation and the roles that gender race class ethnicity and sexual orientation play within the mediated portrayal of women Drawing primarily on qualitative textual analysis of film reality TV advertising the news children s programming soap operas TV drama and more the book situates the representation of women in popular culture along a continuum ranging from stereotypical portrayals that underscore women s bodies as pornographic spectacle to more positive and hopeful depictions And it argues that the contemporary portrayals of women within popular culture are shaped by two major trends the mainstreaming of pornography and its resultant hypersexualization of women and girls and the commodification of those images for a global market Communication in an Era of Global Conflicts Ritchard T. M'Bayo,Bala A. Musa,Chuka Onwumechili,2009 Communication in an Era of Global Conflicts assesses trends and issues in communication and their implications for conflicts in the African context In doing so the various chapters draw from culture tradition folklore communication and conflict theories principles and strategies and from systems approach to conflict resolution The underlying assumption of all the chapters is the pivotal role of communication new media traditional mass communication interpersonal communication intercultural communication and communication technologies in conflict and conflict resolution This book is unique for its multidimensional perspectives a long overdue addition to the growing literature on conflicts in Africa Cultural Reflections and the Role of Advertising in the Socio-economic and National Development of Nigeria Emmanuel C. Alozie, 2005 This study focuses on the role of advertising in the process of social mobilization and modernization in Nigeria by examining the cultural reflections the nature and characteristics of the messages and the values and symbols conveyed in Nigerian mass media advertisements In this remarkable study Emmanuel C Alozie has attempted to explore the role of advertising in the national and economic development of Nigeria Examining this role through a combination of quantitative content analysis and critical cultural methods he has pursued a number of basic research questions For example one question asks what proportion of the advertisements in Nigerian mass media is directed to business entities as opposed to ordinary consumers The answer he provides presents an interesting perspective on advertising s role His research also found that most ads were product related and less than a third of the ads were related to service one indication of the relative underdevelopment of the economy Ads also promoted largely nonessential products and services to the tune of 65 per cent developing country like Nigeria the multitiered government agencies would provide a major share of the media advertising In reality only a tiny proportion about 5 per cent actually came from government sources the rest of the advertising was provided by the national and multinational corporations Alozie also found that Nigerian sponsors tend to promote goods of foreign origin over those of Nigerian derivative Overall he found that less than half the products and services advertised 42 per cent were of Nigerian origin with much of the products nonessential in nature Advertising messages with embedded appeals have the potential of manipulating consumers and promoting unproductive consumption habits among consumers in a situation of scarcity Therefore the appeals that are used in the advertising content become an important issue in a developing nation like Nigeria Alozie did not find extensive use of the image youth and sex appeals in the ads so prevalent in the West even though some of these appeals were found to have crept into the content primary selling point In addition emphasis was on savings family and safety for products regardless of whether the ads featured high involvement or low involvement products and services For decades policy makers in the developing world have debated the need for using mass media for human resource moralization by emphasizing developmental themes To what extent Nigerian ads contain developmental themes is a question Alozie explores He finds that some ads do contain developmental themes such as savings self development modernization investment hard work competition etc These themes however appear rather infrequently Financial institutions emphasize developmental themes while manufacturing enterprises do not The author underscores the need for the government to encourage private and public corporations to include developmental themes in their advertising messages to promote individual as well as communal or collective interests messages the author draws some broad conclusions that provide significant insight into

Nigeria's prevailing advertising scene. For example he concludes that the degree of information on products and services available in the country is inadequate because of low level advertising. Even though developmental themes are employed in advertising messages the sparsity of their use is not likely to promote national development. Broadcast advertisements are more democratic than those in the print media primarily because they promote products and services more affordable to the average consumer. In general consumer products advertised in Nigeria are frequently of foreign origin and therefore they are targeted to the elite who can afford the expensive nonessential products. The author recognizes the value and need for advertising that can disseminate not only beneficial information about products and services but can also serve as an effective tool in government's hands to promote information on significant social and developmental issues and policies that will affect the public. scholars and researchers have contributed to the sizeable existing literature on development few have examined advertising as a meaningful means of communication for developmental messages and values. Through his study Alozie has attempted to fill this void. Students and scholars with an interest in the media of developing nations will find the articulation of the various theories concerning socio economic development quite stimulating. But more importantly by answering a range of significant questions about the nature and types of advertising messages published or aired in the Nigerian mass media discussing what themes and values they contain and how relevant they are or influence the developmental goals of the nation the author offers a study that is useful insightful and rewarding.

Framing War and Genocide Gregory Kent,2006 Although just a decade ago the destruction of a European state and society through war and genocide remains one of the worst global crises of the post Cold War era with reverberations still felt today. Bombardment and sieges of major towns and cities concentration and death camps and the mass slaughter and expulsion of civilians were all characteristics of a type of warfare that Europe had never dreamed might return. The war against Bosnia had a major impact on European and wider global consciousness being as it was then the most reported debated and analyzed conflict to date. But despite the extensive coverage of Bosnia the author contends the conflict and its origins were certainly misunderstood there being a significant gulf between media perspectives and the thrust of academic discourse. This multidisciplinary book is based on extensive research into the TV and newspaper framing of the war during the critical early period of its development. Uniquely the analysis of media is underpinned by an extensive and detailed historical argument about the nature of the wars and the politics of the Federation including the use of media in war making.

strategies in Yugoslavia itself It will be of interest to scholars of IR and politics media communication and journalism studies and war and genocide studies Journalists and the general reader will find the book accessible with valuable insights into reporting war and understanding media representation of conflict Key issues and questions addressed include the critical use of official sources and propaganda in journalism how media and policymakers interact to define and frame problems for policy action what factors limit the accurate reporting of war what is genocide and how is the Genocide Convention relevant in practice and how to report genocide when such coverage conflicts with state interests The Business of Media David Croteau, William Hoynes, 2001 The Business of Media focuses on the changing media industry and the tension between the media industry's insatiable quest for profits and a democratic society's need for a media system that serves the public interest The book reviews the history of the industry and its evolving technologies examines how the structure and business strategies of the industry are changing and considers the potential influence the new media industry will have on society It also looks at how policy and citizen action can help to create media that contribute to a more vibrant public sphere
