Some video games are designed specifically to support family conversations around such real world issues and sensitive topics as bullying and peer pressure Siyahhan and Gee draw on a decade of research to look at how learning and teaching take place when families play video games together With video games they argue the parents are not necessarily the teachers and experts all family members can be both teachers and learners They suggest video games can help families form develop and sustain their learning culture as well as develop skills that are valued in the twenty first century workplace Educators and game designers should take note
