

7. Check for vacuum leaks, especially around the nozzle blocks and vent tubes. If a vacuum leak was not found by the water method but the nozzle area is still suspected, it will be necessary to remove the nozzles in sets and check that the small nozzle gasket is properly seated on each nozzle as described in "Installation of Signal, Fuel and Vent Lines".

8. Check for obstructions in the nozzle block vent tubes.

Poor Fuel Economy

1. Be sure the enrichment lever rests on the economy stop during normal operation after a 5-8 minute warm-up period.

2. After the throttle tab is completely off the fast idle cam, check that there is no perceptible signal at the signal boost tube by disconnecting the rubber sleeve and placing a finger over the tube. If suction is felt, the signal boost valve in the cold enrichment housing is leaking and should be cleaned so that complete signal boost valve seating is obtained; otherwise replace the cold enrichment housing.

3. Check that accurate manifold vacuum signals are reaching the enrichment diaphragm by first taking an engine vacuum check and then by performing the same check at the enrichment signal line connection at the cold enrichment housing. Signal indications at the cold enrichment housing should be within 1" Hg of manifold vacuum reading; otherwise check for partially closed enrichment valve in the cold enrichment housing or a leaking gasket between the cold enrichment housing and air meter.

4. Check for an enrichment diaphragm leak by applying approximately 12-16" Hg to enrichment diaphragm signal tube with a manometer and vacuum source. Manometer indications should hold steady; otherwise a diaphragm leak is indicated.

5. Visually check that the ratio stop screw positions have not been altered. These stops are pre-set at the factory and their positions should never be altered in the field. It will be noted that the lock nuts and screws are covered with a blue sealer which, if broken, will indicate that the adjustments have been disturbed. If these settings have been altered, the fuel meter assembly should be replaced as there is no method presently established for adjusting these settings in the field.

REMOVAL OF FUEL INJECTION FROM ENGINE

1. Disconnect and remove fuel injection pump drive cable by unscrewing nut attaching cable housing to distributor, pull housing and cable out of distributor, and then pull housing and cable free of fuel injection pump, Fig. 6.

2. Disconnect fuel line at the fuel meter.

3. Remove air cleaner as described under "MAINTENANCE AND ADJUSTMENTS."

4. Disconnect the accelerator control rod and transmission TV rod (if automatic transmission) from the bellcrank on the Fuel Injection manifold.

5. Disconnect electrical connector for the starting cut-off switch and cold enrichment coil.
