Online Decision Making Radioactive Disposal Routledge Management:

Decision-making and Radioactive Waste Disposal Andrew Newman, Gerry Nagtzaam, 2015-11-19 The International Atomic Energy Agency estimates that nuclear power generation facilities produce about 200 000 cubic meters of low and intermediate level waste each year. Vital medical procedures, industrial processes and basic science research also produce significant quantities of waste. All of this waste must be shielded from the population for extended periods of time. Finding suitable locations for disposal facilities is beset by two main problems: community responses to siting proposals are generally antagonistic and, as a result, governments have tended to be reactive in their policy making. Decision making and Radioactive Waste Disposal explores these issues utilizing a linear narrative case study approach that critically examines key stakeholder interactions in order to explain how siting decisions for low level waste disposal are made. Five countries are featured: the US, Australia, Spain, South Korea and Switzerland. This book seeks to establish an understanding of the political, economic, environmental, legal and social dimensions of siting across those countries. This valuable resource fills a gap in the literature and provides recommendations for future disposal facility siting efforts. The book will be of interest to students and scholars of environmental law, justice, management, politics, energy and security policy, as well as decision makers in government and industry.

Socioeconomic Evaluation of Megaprojects Markku Lehtonen, Pierre-Benoît Joly, Luis Aparicio, 2016-11-22 The governance and evaluation of megaprojects that is, large scale, complex, high stakes infrastructure projects, usually commissioned by governments and delivered through partnerships between public and private organisations, is receiving increased attention. However, megaproject evaluation has hitherto largely adopted a linear, rationalist perspective to explain the frequent failure of such projects to meet the iron triangle of performance criteria: delivering on time, within budget and according to specifications. This approach recommends greater control and accountability to remedy megaproject pathologies. Drawing on empirical examples mainly from the transport sector and radioactive waste disposal, this book offers new perspectives to megaproject evaluation. Comprising contributions from leading experts in project evaluation and appraisal, this collection opens up new avenues by suggesting two ways of improving megaproject evaluation: 1) approaches that go beyond the dominant linear rationalist notion of policy processes and emphasise instead the objective of opening up appraisal processes in order to enhance learning and reflexivity; and 2) approaches that extend evaluative criteria beyond the iron triangle to cover the various socioeconomic impacts and preconditions for project success. This volume will be of great relevance to scholars and practitioners with an interest in megaprojects, energy and climate policy, radioactive waste management, urban design and project planning and management.

Intergenerational Democracy, Environmental Justice and the Case of Nuclear Waste Lee Towers, Matthew Cotton, 2024-10-07 This book explores the interplay between intergenerational justice and intragenerational justice using nuclear waste management as a consistent case to explore these themes. Lee Towers and Matthew Cotton examine the issue of intergenerational justice from a social scientific perspective.

drawing on central case studies of nuclear waste management in Canada Finland and the United Kingdom They connect indigenous philosophies and notions of justice with the concept of intergenerational democracy advocating for better inclusion of youth and elders in decision making that affects their well being As such the book s primary objectives are fourfold To assess whether trade offs between intergenerational and intragenerational justice are necessary and if so what these trade offs are and how they might be resolved To critically assess dominant western liberal philosophical approaches that shape contemporary intergenerational justice thinking in policy and practice and consider alternatives drawn from anthropology and indigenous philosophies To assess how far our current capitalist system can achieve substantive forms of justice To critically examine three nuclear waste management case studies and assess how far these achieve environmental and energy justice and how they exemplify tensions between inter and intragenerational justice This short accessible volume will be of great interest to students and scholars of energy environmental justice and ethics

Science and Citizens

Melissa Leach,Ian Scoones,Brian Wynne,2013-04-04 Rapid advances and new technologies in the life sciences such as biotechnologies in health agricultural and environmental arenas pose a range of pressing challenges to questions of citizenship This volume brings together for the first time authors from diverse experiences and analytical traditions encouraging a conversation between science and technology and development studies around issues of science citizenship and globalisation It reflects on the nature of expertise the framing of knowledge processes of public engagement and issues of rights justice and democracy A wide variety of pressing issues is explored such as medical genetics agricultural biotechnology occupational health and HIV AIDS Drawing upon rich case studies from Asia Africa Latin America and Europe Science and Citizens asks Do new perspectives on science expertise and citizenship emerge from comparing cases across different issues and settings What difference does globalisation make What does this tell us about approaches to risk regulation and public participation How might the notion of cognitive justice help to further debate and practice

Climate Change and Safety in High-Risk Industries

Corinne Bieder,Gudela Grote,Johannes Weyer,2024-05-15 This open access book directs attention to the safety implications of disruptive sustainability driven changes in sociotechnical systems resulting from climate change considerations in high risk industries It addresses not only the dismantling of currently prevalent systems and structures and the achievement of a stable future state but also the management of processes for establishing new practices in a safe and reliable manner without undue interruption of important functions and services Leading scholars from various fields of research have contributed to this brief by analyzing case studies as well as through conceptual and methodological work They propose strategies for coping with new kinds of risk at local and organizational levels The oil and gas and nuclear industries are two cases investigated here They present a challenging mixture of continuity and disruption and require strategies for coping with safety and sustainability issues at the same time Innovativemethods such as real world experimentation and computer based simulation are discussed as means of investigating the issues at stake Climate Change and Safety in High Risk Industries brings together critical appraisals of the challenges that will be faced by industry regulatory bodies and decision makers in coming decades It analyzes whether safety and sustainability are accurately thought of as competing imperatives or rather offer possibilities for a more cooperative approach to the necessary adaptations in our modes of production and consumption

Saving the Oceans Through Law

James Harrison, 2017-10-27 The oceans cover more than seventy per cent of the surface of the planet and they provide many vital ecosystem services However the health of the world's oceans has been deteriorating over the past decades and the protection of the marine environment has emerged as one of the most pressing legal and political challenges for the international community An effective solution depends upon the cooperation of all states towards achieving agreed objectives This book provides a critical assessment of the role that international law plays in this process by explaining and evaluating the various legal instruments that have been negotiated in this area as well as key trends in global ocean governance Starting with a detailed analysis of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea the book considers the main treaties and other legal texts that seek to prevent, reduce and control damage to the marine environment caused by navigation, seabed exploitation, fishing, dumping and land based activities as well as emerging pressures such as ocean noise and climate change The book demonstrates how international institutions have expanded their mandates to address a broader range of marine environmental issues beyond basic problems of pollution control to include the conservation of marine biological diversity and an ecosystems approach to regulation It also discusses the development of diverse regulatory tools to address anthropogenic impacts on the marine environment and the extent to which states have adopted a precautionary approach in different maritime sectors Whilst many advances have been made in these matters this book highlights the need for greater coordination between international institutions as well as the desirability of developing stronger enforcement mechanisms for international environmental rules

The Politics of Radioactive Waste Management

Gianluca Ferraro, 2018-11-01

Environmental concerns have pushed the decarbonisation of the European economy high on the EU political agenda This has renewed old debates about the role of nuclear energy in the European economy and society that gravitate around the issues of nuclear safety and radioactive waste management RWM RWM carries many elements of technical complexity scientific uncertainty and social value which makes policy decisions highly controversial Public participation is usually believed to improve these decisions ease their implementation by solving substantial conflicts and enhance trust and social acceptance Drawing upon sources including Euratom and the OECD Nuclear Energy Agency the author offers a detailed overview of public involvement in RWM in the EU analysing the implementation of national policies through official programmes and the views of stakeholders from all Member States This book highlights the key successes and challenges in the quest for greater participation in RWM and extrapolates insights for other contested energy infrastructures and controversies in land use This book will be of great relevance to students scholars and practitioners with an interest in radioactive waste management energy policy and EU environmental politics and policy
