Out Of Eden The Peopling Of The World:

Out of Eden: The Peopling of the World Stephen Oppenheimer,2012-03-01 In a brilliant synthesis of genetic archaeological linguistic and climatic data Oppenheimer challenges current thinking with his claim that there was only one successful migration out of Africa In 1988 Newsweek headlined the startling discovery that everyone alive on the earth today can trace their maternal DNA back to one woman who lived in Africa 150 000 years ago It was thought that modern humans populated the world through a series of migratory waves from their African homeland Now an even more radical view has emerged that the members of just one group are the ancestors of all non Africans now alive and that this group crossed the mouth of the Red Sea a mere 85 000 years ago It means that not only is every person on the planet descended from one African Eve but every non African is related to a more recent Eve from that original migratory group This is a revolutionary new theory about our origins that is both scholarly and entertaining a remarkable account of the kinship of all humans

Further details of the findings in this book are presented at www.bradshawfoundation.com/stephenoppenheimer

Out of Eden Stephen Oppenheimer,2003-01-01 The question of how the world was first peopled by modern humans is one of the most controversial in science This book presents new findings that radically change our existing views of humanity's global migration Its main argument centers around the theory that there was only one exodus one group of early modern humans from Africa that went on to people the rest of the world It suggests that this exodus took place 80 000 years ago via a little known southern route across the mouth of the Red Sea It also argues that living Malaysian tribes provide an extant link of the route pursued from there as modern humans beachcombed their way to Australia in the space of 10 000 years These theories form an account of modern man's remaining journey around the world to the Mammoth Steppe heartland of Asia to the now submerged continent of Beringia and on to the last great unpeopled lands of the Americas

Out of Africa's Eden Stephen Oppenheimer,2003 Southern Asia, Australia, and the Search for Human Origins Robin Dennell,Martin

Porr,2014-02-24 This is the first book to focus on the role of Southern Asia and Australia in our understanding of modern human origins and the expansion of Homo sapiens between East Africa and Australia before 30 000 years ago With contributions from leading experts that take into account the latest archaeological evidence from India and Southeast Asia this volume critically reviews current models of the timing and character of the spread of modern humans out of Africa It also demonstrates that the evidence from Australasia should receive much wider and more serious consideration in its own right if we want to understand how our species achieved its global distribution Critically examining the Out of Africa model this book emphasises the context and variability of the global evidence in the search for human origins

This classic text explores the multitude of impacts that humans have had over time upon vegetation, animals, soils, water, landforms and the atmosphere. It considers the ways in which climate changes and modifications in land cover may change the environment in coming decades.
