

Our Lady of Alice Bhatti

Summary

"Our Lady of Alice Bhatti" is a novel written by Pakistani author Mohammed Hanif. It tells the story of Alice Bhatti, a young Christian woman living in the city of Karachi, Pakistan, who works as a nurse in the Sacred Heart Hospital.

The novel explores themes of love, faith, social inequality, and religious intolerance. Alice Bhatti faces numerous challenges and struggles due to her religious minority status in a predominantly Muslim society. She encounters discrimination, violence, and prejudice from both her colleagues and society at large.

Despite the adversities she faces, Alice remains resilient and determined to make a difference. She forms a complex relationship with a fellow hospital worker named Teddy Butt, a bodybuilder and ex-murderer. Their relationship becomes a central focus of the story as they navigate their personal demons and the obstacles of their environment.

Throughout the novel, Hanif delves into the complexities of Pakistani society, highlighting the stark contrast between the rich and poor, the corrupt and the powerless. He explores the dynamics of power, the influence of religious extremism, and the struggle for justice and equality.

As the story progresses, Alice Bhatti finds herself entangled in a web of violence and corruption. She becomes a symbol of hope and resistance, challenging the oppressive social norms and fighting for justice in a system that often fails its marginalized citizens.

"Our Lady of Alice Bhatti" paints a vivid picture of contemporary Pakistan, exposing the harsh realities faced by individuals on the fringes of society. It offers a compelling portrayal of resilience, faith, and the indomitable spirit of a young woman determined to make a difference in a world that often tries to silence her.
