Mothers In Prison

Mothers in Prison Phyllis Jo Baunach,1985-01-01 Several years ago Terry Moore a young first offender at the Florida Correctional Institution for Women gave birth to a baby whose father was a prison guard Mrs Moore won the right to have her baby stay with her in prison until she was released a few months later Although this incarcerated mother was reunited with her child shortly after giving birth many inmate mothers are not able to be with or see their children on a regular basis during incarceration Little is known about this significant and emotionally traumatic problem that confronts nearly two thirds of incarcerated women Building upon previous work this extraordinarily insightful volume offers fresh perspective on issues which surround the separation of inmate mothers and their children using questionnaire standardized scales and individual taped interviews The author examines issues such as the impact of separation by race the child s whereabouts at the time of the crime the child s placement and legal custody during the mother s incarceration inmate mothers interest in resuming the parental role after release child rearing attitudes of inmate mothers and the effects of the involvement of drugs on the mothers relationship with their children Through interviews with administrators staff and inmates Dr Baunach provides a detailed descriptive analysis of the development and operations of programs to retain mother child bonds in women s prisons in a variety of states Dr Baunach discusses day long overnight weekend visitations foster care placements and similar problems of the sort that mothers in prison uniquely must face The work also has a strong policy content providing unique and practical recommendations for policies and programs benefiting inmate mothers and children that at the same time can be implemented within the framework of current penological practices

Women in Prison Barbara H. Zaitzow,Jim Thomas,2003 It is old news that the conditions and policies of women s prisons are different from those for incarcerated men Less evident however is how gender differences shape those policies and how gender identity and roles shape women s adaptation and resistance to prison culture and control The papers in this collection explore how the gender based attitudes that women bring to prison frame how they respond to the prison environment and how gender stereotypes continue to affect the treatment and opportunities of incarcerated women today It looks particularly at how the personal and social problems imported into the prison setting become part of the intricate web of prison culture and how extensively women s prison experience reflects the control and domination they experienced in the outside world

Mothering from the Inside Sandra Enos,2001-01-01 Explores how women in prison manage to mother their children from behind bars

Mothering from the Inside Kelly Lockwood,2020-09-16 The book takes a holistic approach to highlight and explore the range of issues specifically associated with mothering and imprisonment from sentencing through custody to resettlement and focusing on the perspective of mothers and their children

Motherhood confined Rachel E. Bennett,2024-01-30 When we imagine life behind the high walls of the fortress like prisons that were built and modified as the modern prison system was created in the mid nineteenth century we conjure up scenes where strict regulation prevailed to control people in body and in mind An image that poses something of a paradox is that of mothers and their babies living in this carceral environment. This book looks behind the cell doors of these institutions to illuminate the experiences of this group of prisoners. The management of their health alongside the management of penal discipline posed complex conundrums to the prison system. Although rarely fully considered at policy level this balancing act was negotiated by those who lived and worked in prisons on a daily basis. Incarcerating Motherhood Isla Masson, 2019-02-25. Incarcerating Motherhood explores how initial short period in prisons can negatively impact mothers and their children. We have much yet to understand about the enduring harms caused by first time incarceration especially for minimal time periods and for mothers with dependent children. With large numbers of female prisoners currently incarcerated for short periods in England and Wales either on short sentences or remand many of whom are primary caregivers this book asks what kind of impact does this imprisonment has on both parent and child in the long term. Based on original research the experiences of sixteen mothers are presented to voice the material physical and emotional consequences of short term imprisonment. The book explores to what extent these mothers lose their sense of identity in a short space of time whether this continues to affect them post custody and what level of support they are provided during and post custody. This book also explores what bearing the initial separation and the care provided during the mother's absence will have on their children's lives as well as whether the affects of imprisonment on the mother also increase the vulnerability of her children. Incarcerating Motherhood provides a platform for readers to hear how a short sharp shock can cause enduring harms to an already vulnerable group in society and how even short term imprisonment have long lasting and multi dimensional consequences. Incarcerated Mothers: Oppression and Resistance Gordana Eljdupovic, 2013-05-01. A large proportion and in many jurisdictions the majority of incarcerated women are mothers. Popular attention is often paid to challenges faced by children of incarcerated mothers while incarcerated women themselves often do not count as mothers in mainstream discourse. This is the first anthology on incarcerated mothers experiences that is primarily based on and reflects the Canadian context. It is also trans national in scope as it covers related issues from other countries around the world. These essays examine connections between mothering and incarceration from analysis of the justice system and policies criminalization of motherhood to understanding experiences of mothers in prisons as presented in their own voices. They highlight structures and processes which shape and ascribe incarcerated woman's identity as a mother juxtaposing it with scripted and imposed mainstream norms of a good or real mother. Moreover these essays identify and track emergence of mothers resistance and agency within and in spite of the confines of their circumstances.

Pregnancy and New Motherhood in Prison Lucy Baldwin,Laura Abbott,2023-11-30 Incorporating the authentic voices and real life experiences of women this ground breaking book focuses on pregnancy and new motherhood in UK prisons The book delves critically and poignantly into the criminal justice system s response to pregnant and new mothers shedding light on the tragedies of stillborn babies and the deaths of traumatised mothers in prison Based on lived realities it passionately argues the case for enhancing the experiences of pregnant and new mothers involved with the criminal justice system Aiming to catalyse policy and practice the book is key reading for criminology and midwifery students and researchers as well as policy makers and practitioners Breaking Women Jill A. McCorkel, 2013-08-05 Winner of the 2014 Division of Women and Crime Distinguished Scholar Award presented by the American Society of Criminology Finalist for the 2013 C Wright Mills Book Award presented by the Society for the Study of Social Problems Compelling interviews uncover why tough drug policies disproportionately impact women in the American prison system Since the 1980s when the War on Drugs kicked into high gear and prison populations soared the increase in women's rate of incarceration has steadily outpaced that of men As a result women's prisons in the US have suffered perhaps the most drastically from the overcrowding and recurrent budget crises that have plagued the penal system since harsher drug laws came into effect In Breaking Women Jill A McCorkel draws upon four years of on the ground research in a major US women's prison to uncover why tougher drug policies have so greatly affected those incarcerated there and how the very nature of punishment in women's detention centers has been deeply altered as a result Through compelling interviews with prisoners and state personnel McCorkel reveals that popular so called habilitation drug treatment programs force women to accept a view of themselves as inherently damaged aberrant addicts in order to secure an earlier release These programs were created as a way to enact stricter punishments on female drug offenders while remaining sensitive to their perceived feminine needs for treatment yet they instead work to enforce stereotypes of deviancy that ultimately humiliate and degrade the women The prisoners are left feeling lost and alienated in the end and many never truly address their addiction as the programs organizers may have hoped A fascinating and yet sobering study Breaking Women foregrounds the gendered and racialized assumptions behind tough on crime policies while offering a vivid account of how the contemporary penal system impacts individual lives

Motherhood After Incarceration Melissa Thompson, Summer Brooke Newell, 2021 Motherhood after Incarceration Community Reintegration for Mothers in the Criminal Legal System explores the relationships of women who have been recently released from prison or jail with their children immediately after periods of incarceration The analysis draws on in depth interviews with 39 women who are mothers and who had been recently been released in the Portland Oregon metropolitan area Using data collected from these interviews the authors address three interrelated questions 1 How does incarceration affect mother child bonds 2 What obstacles interfere with successful reintegration of these mothers into the community 3 Do mothers who regain immediate custody of their children after incarceration reintegrate better than those with delayed or no resumption of child custody Implications of these findings for policy are explored The research results demonstrate the struggles justice involved mothers experience over time as they seek to reintegrate into the community and resolve their relationships with their children while also struggling with employment housing family relationships and avoiding situations that might ultimately lead to recidivism The authors suggest that policies for reducing recidivism among reentering women should provide more resources for housing childcare mental health and job training and coaching Further there are often behavioral and emotional repercussions associated with the lengthy separation of mother and child which highlights the need for parenting support for these mothers and their children including social and emotional counseling and resources directed toward the maintenance of family ties This book s detailed look at motherhood after incarceration both for mothers with custody and without will appeal to academics policy makers community advocates and activists and undergraduate and postgraduate students in social science courses on correctional policy gender and crime and social work
