My Homeless Generations Lanjing Zhou,2015-12-07 This is the true story of Wu Qianxi Crazy Wu as the boys called her Born in Beijing she spent her first five years with a loving Aunt in a peasant village before her father suddenly took her back to an elite Academy of the People's Liberation Army of China She then lived there as a stranger in a strange land playing mostly alone and also going to elementary school until the Cultural Revolution came and replaced education with re education In that insanity Wu Qianxi found freedom and became a self made Red Guard But when her father was criticized her world collapsed he was the editor of the Workers Press of China and had tried to publish the book titled Liu Zhidan which Mao Zedong thought offensive To survive our hero fell back upon the values of the village where she had been nurtured This is her story told from that girl's point of view as she was growing up first with a peasant family then with her elite parents in Beijing and finally at a remote hospital where she gave intravenous treatments and stitches to patients as a sixteen year old nurse China's Homeless Generation Joshua Fan,2012-05-23 China's Homeless Generation is a study of nearly two million Chinese who were displaced from home in Mainland China to the island of Taiwan A result of the Chinese civil war between the Chinese Nationalist Party KMT and the Chinese Communist Party CCP this massive migration began around 1948 and continued for more than a decade The displacement officially lasted until November 1987 when they were legally allowed to return for the first time in nearly forty years Collectively referred to as the Homeless Generation this unique study makes extensive use of these survivors own voices to formulate a truly fascinating story of a generation of Chinese who found themselves outsiders not just in Taiwan but in the places they called home Joshua Fan provides a detailed picture of the exodus the struggle to find a new home in Taiwan both physically and psychologically and ultimately the experiences and effects of returning to the mainland decades later This book will be of interest to students and scholars of Chinese history the Chinese civil war Chinese Diasporas and China Studies in general

My Homeless Generations Lanjing Zhou,2018-12-08 This is the true story of Wu Qianxi Born in Beijing she spent her first five years with a loving Aunt at a rural village in Hebei Providence China until her father took her back to an academy of the People's Liberation Army She then lived there as a stranger in a strange land until the Cultural Revolution came and replaced education with re education In that chaos Wu Qianxi found freedom and became a self made Red Guard But when her father was criticized her world collapsed he was an editor of the Workers Press of China and had tried to publish the book entitled Liu Zhidan which Mao Zedong thought offensive and to survive our hero fell back upon the values of the village where she had been nurtured This is her story told from that girl's point of view first with a peasant family then with her elite parents in Beijing and finally at a hospital in China's remote northeast where she worked as a sixteen year old surgical nurse China's Sent-Down Generation Helena K. Rene,2013-03-29 During China's Cultural Revolution Chairman Mao Zedong's rustication program resettled 17 million urban youths known as sent downs to the countryside for manual labor and socialist reeducation This book the most comprehensive study of the program to be published in either English or Chinese to date examines the mechanisms and dynamics of state craft in China from the rustication program's inception in 1968 to its official termination in 1980 and actual completion in the 1990s. Rustication in the ideology of Mao's peasant-based revolution formed a critical component of the Cultural Revolution's larger attack on bureaucrats, capitalists, the intelligentsia, and degenerative urban life. This book assesses the program's origins, development, organization, implementation, performance, and public administrative consequences. It was the defining experience for many Chinese born between 1949 and 1962 and many of China's contemporary leaders went through the rustication program. The author explains the lasting impact of the rustication program on China's contemporary administrative culture, for example, showing how and why bureaucracy persisted and even grew stronger during the wrenching chaos of the Cultural Revolution. She also focuses on the special difficulties female sent-downs faced in terms of work pressures to marry local peasants and sexual harassment, predation, and violence. The author's parents were both sent-downs and she was able to interview over fifty former sent-downs from around the country, something never previously accomplished. China's Sent Down Generation demonstrates the rustication program's profound long-term consequences for China's bureaucracy, for the spread of corruption, and for the families traumatized by this authoritarian social experiment. The book will appeal to academics, graduate and undergraduate students in public administration and China studies programs, and individuals who are interested in China's Cultural Revolution era.

Representation of the Cultural Revolution in Chinese Films by the Fifth Generation Filmmakers Ming-May Jessie Chen, S. M. Mazharul Haque, 2007. This book examines historical events related to the Chinese Cultural Revolution between 1966 and 1976, focusing mainly on the work of the so-called Fifth Generation filmmakers who experienced the Cultural Revolution first-hand and produced movies about it, though attention is also given to films from Third, Fourth, and Sixth Generation directors. Assuming that fictional films can be seen as an agent enhancing our historical understanding, this study employing an interdisciplinary approach involving history, philosophy, literature, and ideology, and using the Chinese Cultural Revolution as an example, attempts to examine how such a theory of film might fit into a philosophy of history while also aiming to find places where film and history intersect.
