Kiefer Saturnino #79 Rm 301 11-11-14

Introduction

The city of Ur was one of the most important cities of ancient Mesopotamia. It was located on the Tigris River, about 160 miles from the Persian Gulf. The city was founded by the Sumerians, who were one of the first civilizations to develop writing and the wheel. The city was ruled by a series of kings, including the famous King Ur-Nammu, who was the first to create a code of laws. The city was destroyed by the Babylonians in 606 BC, but it was rebuilt by the Persians in 532 BC. The city was finally destroyed by the Seleucids in 331 BC.

Ice Age Extinction Jim Snook, 2008 The author explores the causes of Earth's cyclical temperature changes and shows how those temperature shifts touch off a chain of events in the atmosphere in the oceans and on land Cold temperature was the trigger and the resultant reduction in carbon dioxide he argues was the bullet that killed off so many species The re warming released more carbon dioxide into the atmosphere and fueled a resurgence This book provides significant long term background information to put global warming into perspective In addition the author describes the human responses to increases in atmospheric carbon dioxide after the last ice age and in the last 150 years Near the end of the last ice age atmospheric carbon dioxide was about half of what it is today Due to the lack of carbon dioxide most of the vegetation disappeared from the middle and high latitudes Without plants to eat many large animals became extinct North America lost three fourths of its large animals including the woolly mammoth mastodon and saber tooth cat Humans too had little to eat in these areas and their population declined dramatically The book then explains how and why atmospheric carbon dioxide increased by about 50% after the last ice age ended encouraging a population explosion among plants animals and humans all of which then migrated into many previously barren areas More recently the 28% increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide in the last 150 years has caused a six fold increase in the human population Changes in the next 300 years will reverse some of the current trends This book has value for anyone interested in the ice age extinction glaciers the glacial cycle the atmosphere and oceans and the past and future of plants animals and humans It provides long term information on atmospheric carbon dioxide global warming and cooling

Glassman, 2021-07-05 This book analyzes the many threats to democracy that exist in the 21st century and tries to understand how democracy can survive economic social and political crises It focuses on issues of oligarchy tyranny totalitarianism and ochlocracy It discusses how these forms of governance manifested themselves in ancient and medieval worlds and how socio economic transitions in the 21st century have created conditions that increasingly pose similar threats to modern democracy The author discusses broad transitions in the contemporary world economic transition to advanced high technology capitalism cultural transition from traditional religious and family values to norms focusing on racial equality gender and transgender equality and liberation and multiculturalism also transition from the traditional religious worldview to rational scientific worldview and from religious morality to secular humanist ethics These taken together undergird the political transition from traditional authority involving monarchy and aristocracy to rational legal authority involving constitutional law and democratic participation The book shows through extensive country discussions that whenever these transitions become difficult undemocratic forms of governance may emerge and override democracy Authored by an expert in the field this book touches upon an especially topical theme in the contemporary world and is of interest to a wide readership across the social sciences from researchers and students to discerning laypersons
