Me The Cyborg Self And The Networked City:

Me++ William J. Mitchell, 2004-09-17 How the transformation of wireless technology and the creation of an interconnected world are changing our environment and our lives With Me the author of City of Bits and e topia completes an informal trilogy examining the ramifications of information technology in everyday life William Mitchell describes the transformation of wireless technology in the hundred years since Marconi the scaling up of networks and the scaling down of the apparatus for transmission and reception It is he says as if Brobdingnag had been rebooted as Lilliput Marconi's massive mechanism of tower and kerosene engine has been replaced by a palm size cellphone If the operators of Marconi's invention can be seen as human appendages to an immobile machine today's hand held devices can be seen as extensions of the human body This transformation has in turn changed our relationship with our surroundings and with each other The cellphone calls from the collapsing World Trade Center towers and the hijacked jets on September 11 were testimony to the intensity of this new state of continuous electronic engagement Thus Mitchell proposes the trial separation of bits the elementary unit of information and atoms the elementary unit of matter is over With increasing frequency events in physical space reflect events in cyberspace and vice versa digital information can for example direct the movement of an aircraft or a robot arm In Me Mitchell examines the effects of wireless linkage global interconnection miniaturization and portability on our bodies our clothing our architecture our cities and our uses of space and time Computer viruses cascading power outages terrorist infiltration of transportation networks and cellphone conversations in the streets are symptoms of a dramatic new urban condition that of ubiquitous inescapable network interconnectivity He argues that a world governed less and less by boundaries and more and more by connections requires us to reimagine and reconstruct our environment and to reconsider the ethical foundations of design engineering and planning practice

Me++ William J. Mitchell, 2004 The author of City of Bits and e topia finishes his trilogy with a survey of the cybernetic consequences of Internet and wireless technology exploring the ways in which modern technology is extending the human body and mind Technology Beyond the Networked City Olivier Coutard, Jonathan Rutherford, 2015-12-14 Cities around the world are undergoing profound changes In this global era we live in a world of rising knowledge economies digital technologies and awareness of environmental issues The so called modern infrastructural ideal of spatially and socially ubiquitous centrally governed infrastructures providing exclusive homogeneous services over extensive areas has been the standard of reference for the provision of basic essential services such as water and energy supply This book argues that after decades of undisputed domination this ideal is being increasingly questioned and that the network ideology that supports it may be waning In order to begin exploring the highly diverse fluid and unstable landscapes emerging beyond the networked city this book identifies dynamics through which a break with previous configurations has been operated and new brittle zones of socio technical controversy through which urban infrastructure and its wider meaning are being negotiated and fought over It uncovers across a diverse set of urban contexts new ways in which processes of urbanization and infrastructure production are being combined with crucial sociopolitical implications through shifting political economies of infrastructure which rework resource distribution and value creation through new infrastructural spaces and territorialities which rebundle socio technical systems for particular interests and claims and through changing offsets between individual and collective appropriation experience and mobilization of infrastructure With contributions from leading authorities in the field and drawing on theoretical advances and original empirical material this book is a major contribution to an ongoing infrastructural turn in urban studies and will be of interest to all those concerned by the diverse forms and contested outcomes of contemporary urban change across North and South

Manifesto for the Humanities Sidonie Smith, 2016 After a remarkable career in higher education that has seen her serve as the Chair of the University of Michigan English Department the Director of the Michigan Institute for the Humanities and the President of the Modern Language Association Sidonie Smith offers Manifesto for the Humanities as a reflective contribution to the current academic conversation over the place of the humanities in the 21st century Her focus as the subtitle indicates is on doctoral education and opportunities she sees for its reform The Grand Challenge confronting academic humanists Smith avers is the imperative of sustaining passionate conviction about the value of studying the humanities in a climate of funding scarcity corporatization and neoliberal market economics Responsibility for that sustainability in the academy in the nation and around the globe lies in part with humanities doctoral students now or soon to be entering careers who are driven by the desire to continue conversations journeys and discoveries whether they take place in archives in lines of poetry in the logic of the assertion or in the dirt of the dig These doctoral students are preparing to play their role as agents of change for a sustainable future Grounded in research and a thorough background study of factors contributing to current crises in the humanities Smith's project advocates for a broadening or re opening of some of the more hermetic aspects of ultra specialization towards further interdisciplinary bridge building and towards a more robust engaged public humanities Book jacket
