Converging Media John V. Pavlik, 2010      Making Sense of Media George R. Rodman, 2001

This dynamic new book on introductory mass communication uses a unique narrative approach to help readers understand a broad and constantly changing field while encouraging them to become critical consumers of media. Where did the media come from? Why do media industries do what they do? And why do some of these actions cause controversies? Making Sense of Media employs a three-part narrative framework in every chapter that examines history, industry, and controversies. Important topics such as new technology, globalization, diversity, convergence, and conglomeration are integrated throughout. For anyone interested in learning more about mass communication on an introductory level.

Media Today Joseph Turow, 1999. How do books, newspapers, music recordings, movies, television shows, and online sites get made? How does content in different media get funded, produced, and delivered to the right audiences? Why do certain materials and not others get created and distributed in different media? What role do governments, federal, state, local, play in the process? This book addresses these and related questions with concrete examples from a wide variety of mass media, from books to cable television, highway billboards to online services. The text tracks among other developments, the explosion of competition among new and old media, pressures toward greater and greater conglomeration among media firms, the need to increasingly segment audiences, and their obligation to expand global sales. Students need to understand what is happening, why, and with what possible consequences for society.

Mass Communication Today Subir Ghosh, 1996. The Media of Mass Communication John Vivian, 1999. Mass Media Law Don R. Pember, 2003. Key Readings in Media Today Brooke Erin Duffy, Joseph Turow, 2009. Key Readings in Media Today provides both historical and contemporary analyses of each of the major media industries: book, newspaper, magazine, sound recording, radio, motion picture, television, new media, advertising, and public relations. The volume places an emphasis on convergence, looking at the ways boundaries between these media industries are blurring in surprising new ways. Section introductions and headnotes for each article offer valuable critical and historical context, while review questions after each reading test students' understanding of key concepts. Additional resources on the Companion Website www.routledge.com/textbooks/9780415876087 are designed to spark classroom discussion and connect the readings to the latest contemporary media issues and controversies. By combining classic studies of mass communication with contemporary research on media technology and culture, Key Readings in Media Today will help students to make sense of the rapidly changing media environment.

The Media in Your Life Jean Folkerts, Stephen Lacy, 2001. With a strong emphasis on media convergence throughout, this book helps readers develop a system-wide view of the interacting social, historical, economic, and technological forces at work in today's rapidly evolving mass media. Written by two highly regarded scholars and teachers, this book goes beyond other textbooks to help readers understand where, how, and why they fit into the contemporary media environment. Too often, mass communication texts rely only on popular publications or on academic research. In this interactive text, they have combined the concrete practice of journalism with empirical research, enabling students to comprehend the impact of the dynamic media that are an integral part of our lives today.

Folkerts and Lacy guide readers through today's whirlwind of mass communication by providing them with the information and critical thinking skills necessary to consider objectively the media and its roles in their lives. For anyone interested in gaining knowledge of the media.
