Mechanisms of Memory Formation Christian Hölscher, 2001 Long term potentiation LTP is by far the most dominant model for neuronal changes that might encode memory LTP is an elegant concept that meets many criteria set up by theoreticians long before the model's discovery and it also fits anatomical data of learning dependent synapse changes Since the discovery of LTP the question has remained about how closely LTP produced in vitro by artificial stimulation of neurons actually models putative learning induced synaptic changes A number of recent investigations have tried to correlate synaptic changes observed after learning with changes produced by artificial stimulation of neurons These studies have failed to find a correlation between the two forms of synaptic plasticity In this book an international group of neurobiologists and psychologists discuss their latest ideas and data The results of experiments using electrophysiological techniques in vitro are discussed and compared with the results of in vivo experiments Learning experiments are also discussed Theoretical models such as the Hebb theory of synaptic changes during learning are compared to different models that do not predict upregulation of synaptic transmission A wide approach is taken and research and models in different brain areas such as the neocortex and the basal brain are discussed

Novel Mechanisms of Memory Karl Peter Giese, Kasia Radwanska, 2015-12-09 This book integrates discoveries from recent years to show the diversity of molecular mechanisms that contribute to memory consolidation reconsolidation extinction and forgetting It provides a special focus on the processes that govern functional and structural plasticity of dendritic spines In nine chapters new and important ideas related to learning and memory processes will be presented Themes discussed include the role of AMPA receptors in memory two signalling cascades involved in local spine remodelling and memory the role of extracellular matrix proteins in memory the regulation of gene expression and protein translation and mechanisms of retrieval induced memory modulation and forgetting We believe that the study of these topics represents a great step toward understanding the complexity of the brain and the processes it governs
