The Normal Training of the Child (Classic Reprint) Madison Ashley Hart, 2015-07-12 Excerpt from The Normal Training of the Child At the genesis of our discussion a foreword of explanation is perhaps necessary and advisable In this busy progressive epoch making age that man is a dilettante who either reads writes or talks for the mere thought of discussion We should be profoundly thankful that we are fast moving away from the thought of simply seeking truth for truth s sake studying art for art s sake or achieving progress for fame s sake It is now for life s sake and man s sake that we use the microscope and telescope the scalpel of the surgeon the atom of the scientist the brush of the artist Geology astronomy philosophy psychology as well as religion must bear a vital relation to man before they can perform their highest service in the working out of the eternal purpose It is wise then to couple our dreaming with soldiering our praying with planning our worship with working Our purpose is not to rattle the dry bones of either a past or present theology About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The Scientific Training of Children (Classic Reprint) Christian D. Larson, 2015-08-05 Excerpt from The Scientific Training of Children There is just as much talent and genius in the dull child as in the bright child the only difference being that in the latter genius has become active while in the former it is as yet inactive But it can be made active in every mind to its fullest capacity and power In the scientific training of children the first principle to be recognized and applied is that remarkable ability extraordinary talent and rare genius does exist in the deeper mentality of every child And that whatever exists in the deeper mentality can be developed and brought out into tangible expression for practical use It is only a matter of knowing how The belief that child training should be deferred until the ages of six eight or ten is not consistent with the natural law of development Such is simply a belief that has originated from the fact that the modern system of training is in so many instances detrimental to the best mental welfare of the child the reason being that it tends entirely too much to cram the surface of the mind thus overworking and stupefying in many instances what intellect there may be in action on the surface About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve

Excerpt from The Normal Course in Reading Primer

First Steps in Reading

The effort of learning to read should do much more for the child than to give him power to recognize words and to pronounce sentences and paragraphs. Many valuable features are found in this book that are new in a book of this grade. 1 The matter which the child is to learn to read relates to his home life, school and neighborhood experiences. In these the child's interest is at once supreme and aggressive. 2 The matter to be read is the natural expression of childhood. It is adequate and sequential though natural and simple. These characteristics together with the quotations used make the book a natural, easy and rational beginner's book in literature whose use will inculcate the habit of connected related thought and expression. This only is correct language teaching. 3 The narrative character of the book as an entirety will secure and sustain the interest of the child without forced effort or resort to fictitious means for he is born responsive to his social environment. 4 The lessons are such that by their use the motor activities of the child may be employed and his self helpfulness easily secured in preparing for and representing the facts given and in making applications of what is learned. Self entertainment may be made to result in training for discipline and manual dexterity. The artist and the printer have added much to the pedagogical values of the book. The illustrations explaining and enlarging the meanings of the text will prove an invaluable aid to the teacher.
