Developing an optimal strategy and comparing it with the strategy that the firm actually uses provides an interesting comparison. In particular, we can ask: how far is the actual strategy from the optimal strategy? In addition, we can ask: how far is the actual strategy from the strategy that the firm would use if it were not constrained by its resources? The answers to these questions will be useful in assessing the firm's performance and in identifying areas for improvement.

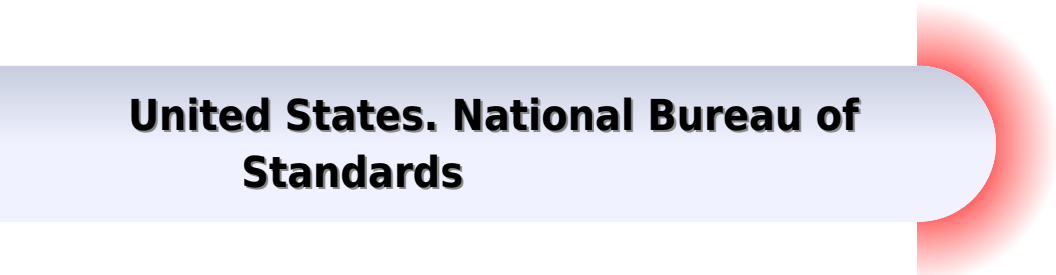

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased. Obesity is a leading cause of heart disease, diabetes, and other health problems. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that more than 60 million Americans are obese. This is a significant public health problem because obesity is a major risk factor for many chronic diseases. The CDC also reports that obesity is the leading cause of death in children and adolescents. This is a concerning trend because obesity in children can lead to long-term health problems. The CDC also reports that obesity is the leading cause of death in adults. This is a concerning trend because obesity in adults can lead to long-term health problems.
