Oakhurst Paula DiPerna, Vikki Keller, 2002-04-01 Golf formally came to America in 1884 Russell Montague a thirty two year old Harvard educated lawyer had moved to White Sulphur Springs West Virginia to improve his health His Scottish neighbors George Grant and Alexander and Roderick MacLeod were also men of leisure When Grant s golf obsessed nephew Lionel Torin arrived from Ceylon these five built purely for their own pleasure a nine hole course on Montague s land unaware that it was the first course in the United States and tenuously launching what has arguably become America s most popular sport Oakhurst tells the memorable story of this historic course from its birth and brief first life of fifteen years to its miraculous restoration 110 years later Weaving the lives of the founders through a fascinating history of golf the evolution of its equipment and the genesis of course design Paula DiPerna and Vikki Keller recount colorful stories of early matches that astonished local residents who thought the founders mad It may be a fine game for a canny Scotchman but no American will ever play it except Montague one opined Some sixty years after Oakhurst had fallen into neglect legendary local golfer Sam Snead gave it new life convincing his friend Lewis Keller to buy the land Their dream of restoring the course was realized in 1994 when Keller and noted golf architect Bob Cupp relying on scant clues and intuition unearthed the dormant holes one by one As Lee Trevino Tom Watson and many others who have played the course discovered only period equipment hickory shafted clubs gutta percha balls is allowed and nineteenth century rules prevail making Oakhurst the only place in America where anyone can experience the game as it was first played It is an important chapter in sports history a nostalgic piece of Americana and Oakhurst brings its magic alive

legendary Donald Ross and first opened in 1907 Physically and mentally demanding the course gave players options on every hole and required them to envision and execute recovery shots from the sandy perimeters and the pine forests as well as think creatively around the intricate greens As a result No 2 became a favorite of the nation s top amateurs and professionals Unfortunately a modernization of the course over the last four decades stripped it of much of its character In The Golden Age of Pinehurst Lee Pace chronicles the breathtaking restoration of No 2 from its recent slick and monochromatic presentation back to a natural potpourri of hardpan sand wire grass and Sandhills pine needles The restored No 2 accessible for amateur play yet challenging enough for the professional once again stands apart for its beauty strategic appeal and Old World flavor
