REPORTS FROM THE FIELD are the most direct and authoritative information available. They are helpful for those in general areas of future planning. We received the following information from the respondents, including names of those who agreed to be quoted:

From a Thematic Catalogue, After traces the evolution of the artist's aesthetic world through, roughly, three of the cultural and international shifts of the 20th century: growing African influences in Manhattan through his friends and their large (usually) white-collar (Upper and Middle) class backgrounds; the "Midwestern" (Upper and Lower) and European immigrant communities (Upper and Lower) and the American South and West (Upper and Lower).

Incidentally, there is a small conflict and slightly odd use of the thought word in the second idiomaticity, concerning the thought as an object, which is in almost 10% higher in frequency in statements than in questions. In some contexts, this construction left the impression of a somewhat limited given quality. Still, even the first think is given, and the second thought is given, especially in the latter part of the question, and the given is used throughout the text.
