Oneill In An Hour Playwrights In An Hour:

The Aesthetics of Failure Zander Brietzke, 2001-03-15 Critic Clive Barnes once called Eugene O'Neill the world's worst great playwright and Brooks Atkinson called him a tragic dramatist with a great knack for old fashioned melodrama. These descriptions of the man can also be used to describe his work. Despite the fact that O'Neill is the only American playwright to win the Nobel Prize for Literature and his last works are some of America's finest, most of his published works are not good. This work closely examines how O'Neill's failures as a playwright are inspiring and how his disappointments are reflections of his own theory that tragedy requires failure, a theory that is evident in his work. Conflicts in O'Neill's plays are studied at the structural level with attention paid to genre, language or dialogue, characters, space and time, elements and action. Included is information about O'Neill's life and a chronological listing of all of his 50 plays with basic details such as production history, principal characters, dramatic action and a brief commentary.

Eugene O'Neill Egil Törnqvist, 2004-01-28 Eugene O'Neill wrote his plays for a theatre in which the playwright would take a central position. He presented himself as a controlling personality both in the texts in the form of ample stage directions and in performances based on these texts. His plays address several audiences: reader, spectator and production team. Scripts were often different from the published versions. This study examines O'Neill's multiple roles as a writer for many audiences. After a description of O'Neill's working conditions and the multiple audiences of the plays, this study examines the various formal aspects of the plays: titles, settings in time and place, names and addresses, language and connections, and allusions to other works. An examination of the plays follows, with particular emphasis on Bound East for Cardiff, Long Day's Journey Into Night and A Touch of the Poet.

O'Neill in an Hour James Fisher, 2010 In 1912 a twenty-four-year-old Eugene O'Neill was diagnosed with tuberculosis and sent to a sanitarium. There O'Neill pondered his recent suicide attempt and his family's struggles with alcohol and drugs. It was there too that he decided to be a playwright after spending his days reading great works of literature and drama. Years later, looking back, he wrote Long Day's Journey Into Night, a play that he would complete at the very end of his career. Setting the playwright in context to his personal life, social, historical and political events, other writers of influence and more, you will quickly gain a deep understanding of O'Neill and the plays he wrote. Read O'Neill in an Hour and experience his plays like never before. Know the playwright, love the play. The book features O'Neill in an Hour the main essay of the book, O'Neill In a Minute, a snapshot chronology, a complete listing of O'Neill's work, a list of O'Neill's contemporaries in all fields, excerpts from O'Neill's significant works, an extensive bibliography grouped according to type of reader. An index of the main essay. Playwrights in an Hour is a series devoted to the most produced and studied playwrights in the English language, from the Greek masters to contemporary writers and written by leading authorities in the field. Each short book places the playwright and his or her work in historical, social and literary context. James Fisher, professor of theatre and head of the Department of Theatre at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, has authored several books.

including Understanding Tony Kushner The Historical Dictionary of the American Theater Modernism co authored with Felicia Hardison Londr The Theater of Tony Kushner Living Past Hope Eddie Cantor A Bio Bibliography Spencer Tracy A Bio Bibliography Al Jolson A Bio Bibliography and The Theatre of Yesterday and Tomorrow Commedia dell Arte on the Modern Stage He has edited We Will Be Citizens New Essays on Gay and Lesbian Theater six volumes of The Puppetry Yearbook and Tony Kushner New Essays on the Art and Politics of the Plays He is also a director and actor author of two plays The Bogus Bride and The Braggart Soldier freely adapted from Plautus's Miles Gloriosus and served as book review editor for both the Journal of Dramatic Theory and Criticism and Broadside the publication of the Theatre Library Association Fisher was McLain McTurnan Arnold Research Scholar at Wabash College in 1987 1988 and 1999 2000 where he taught for twenty nine years and was named Theatre Person of the Year by the Indiana Theatre Association in 1997 In 2007 Fisher received the Betty Jean Jones Award for Excellence in the Teaching of American Theatre from the American Theatre and Drama Society
