Melinda Moore, 2010 U S policymakers have stepped up systematic disaster preparedness efforts sharply since the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 including the creation of the U S Department of Homeland Security and a plethora of federal initiatives Against a backdrop of natural disasters that occur each year in the United States and heightened concern about pandemic influenza there is an emerging national consensus that the best path is an all hazards approach to disaster preparedness planning and that effective local planning is critical Military installations and their civilian counterparts local government and local health care providers especially the U S Department of Veterans Affairs can strengthen local level disaster preparedness planning This is an interim report for the first phase of a larger study aiming to develop a planning support tool for local military and civilian planners It describes current policies and programs especially those with nationwide application for domestic emergency preparedness risk analysis and capabilities based planning It also describes results from interviews with local military and civilian planners at five selected sites to help understand how local preparedness planning currently operates and identify the needs of local planners Collectively these form the basis for a proposed tool for which the framework is described in this report The next phase of the study will include development and field testing of a proof of concept prototype of the tool Organization John Child, 2014-12-30 Adaptation Or Expiration

in Family Firms Andrés Hatum, 2007 Andres Hatum explores determinants of organizational flexibility in this examination of four family owned companies two flexible and two less flexible from the edible oil and pharmaceutical industries By means of an innovative analysis including longitudinal analysis coding analysis statistical analysis and the use of original display charts he illustrates the determinants of flexibility and sheds light on the process of transformation and adaptation of family firms an area that has not yet been the subject of extensive empirical inquiry The management literature has claimed that the complexity of business contexts has forced firms to confront hypercompetitive or high velocity environments Behind such claims lies a new interest in the dynamics of adaptation and in particular a firm s flexibility as a way of adjusting under conditions of uncertainty The businesses studied here have had to contend with the environmental volatility that characterized Argentina for some years The author identifies five determinants of flexibility as a set of organizational and managerial capabilities that enabled some firms to adapt quickly in a highly competitive environment heterogeneity of the dominant coalition centralization and formalization of decision making low macroculture embeddedness environmental scanning and a strong organizational identity These findings were analyzed and interpreted by developing theoretical ideas from three areas between which historically there has been no interface organizational flexibility organizational innovativeness and institutional embeddedness This insightful examination into what enables some family owned businesses to survive and thrive and causes others to fail will be of interest to academics concerned with business flexibility and adaptation as well as to managers and owners of family businesses
