component of task sets in these situations. However, these approaches have been rather vague regarding explanatory concepts e.g. task set inhibition, preparation, shielding, capacity limitation, widely lacking theories on detailed mechanisms and/or empirical evidence for specific subcomponents. The present research topic aims at providing a selection of contributions on the details of executive functioning in dual task and task switching situations. The contributions specify these executive functions by focusing on 1) fractionating assumed mechanisms into constituent subcomponents, 2) their variations by age or in clinical subpopulations and/or 3) their plasticity as a response to practice and training.
