problems we face However you will realize there is a process involved if you willfully put your mind to find solutions We all encounter problems in our everyday existence be it in our home office or elsewhere We device many methods to solve each one of them many we succeed and some we fail There is a design to this madness of solving problems even if we indulge it consciously or unconsciously Over a period of time we develop some common patterns or we simply think those are the best solutions suited for a situation There is a pattern for every system present in nature You need to grasp those finer details to know how to solve an issue if something crops up This is true with life in general for man made gadgets the nature around us or anything we come across Whatever method we choose we always want to solve the troubles within a short period of time It is how efficiently one finds solutions that make a difference between us and the rest of the crowd in the end This book tries to make one understand the importance of patterns that any system in nature follows And chasing those patterns how we can develop methods that would help ease the efforts in solving the stumbling blocks efficiently and effectively Solution and Pseudo-solution Harold Picton,S.
