Anne Teeter Ellison, Margaret Semrud-Clikeman, 2007-03-09 Child Neuropsychology guides therapists and neurologists toward common goals early accurate diagnosis and finely focused interventions across disciplines. This groundbreaking volume brings vital perspectives to assessment and treatment. For clinical child practitioners as well as for advanced students this book contains the essential tools needed to meet the complex challenges of diagnosing and treating brain based illnesses.

Child Neuropsychology John E. Obrzut, George W. Hynd, 2013-09-24 Child Neuropsychology Volume 2 Clinical Practice attempts to bridge the gap between neurodevelopmental theory and clinical practice with a pediatric population. The focus is on some of the more common neuropsychological disorders encountered in children along with neuropsychological evaluation intervention and treatment. Comprised of 11 chapters this volume begins with an overview of issues and perspectives in clinical child neuropsychology followed by a discussion on neurodevelopmental learning disorders in children. The neuropsychological basis of psychiatric disorders in children are then examined together with epilepsy and closed head injury as well as different approaches and issues relevant to neuropsychological evaluation of children. Subsequent chapters deal with the importance of soft signs and neuropsychological screening, neuropsychological assessment of children, actuarial and clinical assessment practices and intervention and treatment. The book also presents an overview of how one might conceptualize and integrate differential diagnosis of neurodevelopmental learning disabilities with appropriate curriculum based intervention strategies. The final chapter considers the broader applications of behavioral neuropsychology. This book is relevant to clinical child or pediatric neuropsychologists, child or school psychologists, physicians interested in pediatric neuropsychological disorders and other professionals who provide services to children with neurologically based disorders. It may also serve as a reference for audiologists, speech and language therapists or educators.

Performance Assessment System? (R-PAS?) Gregory J. Meyer, 2017-12-12 From codevelopers of the Rorschach Performance Assessment System R PAS this essential casebook illustrates the utility of R PAS for addressing a wide range of common referral questions with adults, children and adolescents. Compelling case examples from respected experts cover clinical issues such as assessing psychosis, personality disorders and suicidality, forensic issues such as insanity and violence risk assessments, child custody proceedings and domestic violence and use in neuropsychological, educational and other settings. Each tightly edited chapter details R PAS administration, coding and interpretation. Designed to replace the widely used Comprehensive System developed by John Exner, R PAS has a stronger empirical foundation, is accurately normed for international use, is easier to learn and use and reduces ambiguities in administration and coding among other improvements.

Child and Parent Experiences of Neuropsychological Assessment as a Function of Child-centered Feedback Shea McNeill Pilgrim,2010 Research has paid little attention to clients experience of the psychological assessment process particularly in regard to the experiences of children and their parents Advocates of collaborative assessment have long espoused the therapeutic benefits of providing feedback that can help clients better understand themselves and improve their lives Finn Fischer 1970 1985 1994 Finn Tharinger and colleagues 2007 2009 have extended a semi structured form of collaborative assessment Therapeutic Assessment TA with children One important aspect of their method drawn from Fischer s 1985 1994 example is the creation of individualized fables that incorporate assessment findings into a child friendly format The fables are then shared with the child and parents as assessment feedback This study evaluated whether receiving this type of individualized developmentally appropriate feedback would affect how children and their parents report experiencing the assessment process The assessment process with the exception of child feedback was standard for the setting Participants were 32 children who underwent a neuropsychological evaluation at a private outpatient clinic along with their parents Multivariate and univariate statistics were used to test differences between two groups an experimental group that received individualized fables as child focused feedback and a control group Children in the experimental group reported a greater sense of learning about themselves a more positive relationship with their assessor a greater sense of collaboration with the assessment process and a sense that their parents learned more about them because of the assessment than did children in the control group Parents in the experimental group reported a more positive relationship between their child and the assessor a greater sense of collaboration with the assessment process and higher satisfaction with clinic services compared to the control group Limitations to the study implications for assessment practice with children and future directions for research are discussed
