Productive, Not Polarizing

Heather Kenyon Casey, This book co-published with the National Science Teaching Association (NSTA) provides the support that K-12 teachers and students need for more complex science investigations. Drawing on research that informs effective literacy practices, this book pushes back on singular ideologies, programs, and divisive rhetoric and instead embraces an inclusive perspective for supporting literacy development and learning. Readers are encouraged to move beyond debates that divide us and look toward the hard but necessary work of building the partnerships needed to support all students. Productive Not Polarizing begins with a focus on community literacies and then describes effective literacy practices across grade levels. Designed for a wide audience, it will assist educators, families, and community partners to have informed conversations about what literacy instruction and learning involves. Every chapter includes a Community Snapshot describing a real-life scenario in which a partnering benefits students, an Ideas for Action section that can be adapted to your own context, reflection questions, and a list of helpful resources that include potential sources of funding. Book Features: An accessible, positive discussion of literacy research and practices for educators, families, and community partners; A response to increasingly contentious conversations about literacy instruction; Guidance to help educators engage with key community partners and stakeholders such as administrators, families, childcare centers, afterschool programs, and local school boards; Opportunities to consider the role of teacher education and professional development in supporting school-community conversations; Ready-to-
