It is also to ensure the best possible signal-to-noise ratio (SNR) for the signal of interest, as well as to ensure that the signal is not distorted by the noise. In order to achieve this, the signal must be processed in a way that ensures that the signal is not distorted by the noise. This is done by using a filter that is designed to pass the signal and reject the noise. The filter is designed to pass the signal and reject the noise, and the signal is then processed in a way that ensures that the signal is not distorted by the noise.
