Pain Management pocketcard Set

General Approach to Pain Management

ASK:

Always ask patient about the presence of pain and accept the patient's report of pain.

ASSESS:

Perform a comprehensive pain assessment:
- Onset, duration, and location
- Quality (sharp, dull, diffuse, throbbing, etc)
- Intensity (1–10 scale for example)
- Aggravating and alleviating factors
- Effect on function and quality of life
- Patient's goal for pain control
- Response to prior or current treatments
- History and physical examination

TREAT:
- With opioid naive, start dose low, go slow, but pt!!
- Avoid IM route; the PO route is preferred
- Treat persistent pain with regularly scheduled meds
- Two drugs of the same class (eg, NSAIDs) should not generally be given concurrently, however long- and short-acting opioids may be prescribed together
- Avoid meperidine (per American Pain Society and ISMP) and propoxyphene (antidiuretic and ↓ efficacy)

MONITOR:
- Assess and reassess pain frequently
- Most opioid agonists have no analgesic ceiling dose; titrate to relief and assess for adverse effects
- Assess anticipate, and manage opioid adverse effects aggressively
- Discuss goals and plans with patient and family
- Addiction rarely occurs unless there is a hx of abuse
- Watch for red flags of addiction:
  1) Compulsive use
  2) Loss of control
  3) Use despite harm

Breakthrough Pain Management

General
- Use long-acting opioid around the clock for baseline management of persistent pain
- Use short-acting opioids PRN (rescue) for breakthrough pain
- Consider using the same drug for both baseline and rescue doses whenever possible (eg long-acting morphine + short-acting morphine)

Rescue Dosing
- The rescue dose is 10%–15% of the 24-h total daily dosage
- Oral rescue doses should be available every 1–2 h; parenteral dose every 15–30 minutes

Adjustment
- If the patient is consistently taking ≥ 3 rescue doses daily, consider increasing the baseline around-the-clock dosage
- Recalculate rescue dose whenever the baseline dosage is changed

Example

Calculate rescue dose for patient on baseline coverage of MS Contin 200 mg q 12 h:
1. Calculate total daily dosage: 200 mg x 2 = 400 mg morphine/d
2. Establish rescue dose: 10%–15% of 400 mg = 40–60 mg short-acting morphine
3. Oral rescue dose therefore is: morphine 40–60 mg PO q 1–2 h
4. Parenteral rescue dose based on continuous infusion: Calculate based on 25%–50% of hourly dose

Pain Types

Type	Examples	Quality
Somatic pain	Trauma, burns, bone metastasis	Constant, sometimes throbbing or aching; tender and localized to the site of origin
Visceral pain	Renal stone, passage, small bowel obstruction, appendicitis, cancer	Poorly localized, may be referred to distant cutaneous site (eg, esophagogastric irritation referred to epigastrium/shoulder); often associated with nausea or diaphoresis
Neuropathic pain	Nerve compression, cancer invasion of neural structures, diabetic neuropathy, postherpetic neuropathy, trigeminal neuralgia	Prolonged, severe, burning, lancinating, shooting; responsible for pain out of proportion to physical findings; often requires diagnostic tests to be ordered to confirm and difficult to treat

Interventional Pain Management Techniques

Technique	Indications
Epidural steroid injection (ESI)	Inflammation associated with conditions such as spinal stenosis, disc herniation or degenerative disc disease
Facet block	Diagnostic test used to isolate and confirm the specific source of back pain (facet joints)
Selective nerve root block (SNRB)	Primarily used to diagnose the specific source of nerve root pain and sensitivity for therapeutic purposes such as treatment for a far lateral disc herniation
Paravertebral block (thoracic, lumbar/sacral, subcostal)	Good for localized pain not requiring multiple segmental blocks; successful SNRB should be done prior to neurolysis
