A high-angle, aerial photograph of a long bridge stretching across a body of water. The sky is a deep, warm orange and red, suggesting either a sunrise or sunset. The bridge's structure is visible, with lights along its length. In the foreground, the dark silhouette of a shoreline or island is visible on the left, and the calm water reflects the warm colors of the sky.

From the Inside Out Jill Lindsey Harrison, 2019-10-29 An examination of why government agencies allow environmental injustices to persist Many state and federal environmental agencies have put in place programs policies and practices to redress environmental injustices and yet these efforts fall short of meeting the principles that environmental justice activists have fought for In From the Inside Out Jill Lindsey Harrison offers an account of the bureaucratic culture that hinders regulatory agencies attempts to reduce environmental injustices It is now widely accepted that America's poorest communities communities of color and Native American communities suffer disproportionate harm from environmental hazards with higher exposure to pollution and higher incidence of lead poisoning cancer asthma and other diseases linked to environmental ills And yet Harrison reports some regulatory staff view these problems as beyond their agencies area of concern requiring too many resources or see neutrality as demanding color blind administration Drawing on more than 160 interviews with interviewees including 89 current or former agency staff members and more than 50 environmental justice activists and others who interact with regulatory agencies and more than 50 hours of participant observation of agency meetings both open and closed door Harrison offers a unique account of how bureaucrats resist undermine and disparage environmental justice reform and how environmental justice reformers within the agencies fight back by trying to change regulatory practice and culture from the inside out Harrison argues that equity not just aggregated overall improvement should be a metric for evaluating environmental regulation

Inequality in America Stephen M. Caliendo, 2018-05-15 Why does inequality have such a hold on American society and public policy And what can we as citizens do about it Inequality in America takes an in depth look at race class and gender based inequality across a wide range of issues from housing and education to crime employment and health Caliendo explores how individual attitudes can affect public opinion and lawmakers policy solutions He also illustrates how these policies result in systemic barriers to advancement that often then contribute to individual perceptions This cycle of disadvantage and advantage can be difficult though not impossible to break Representing and What Can I Do feature boxes throughout the book highlight key public figures who have worked to combat inequality and encourage students to take action to do the same The second edition has been thoroughly revised to include the most current data and to cover recent issues and events like the 2016 elections and the Black Lives Matter movement It now also includes a brand new chapter on crime and criminal justice and an expanded discussion of immigration Concise and accessible Inequality in America paves the way for students to think critically about the attitudes behaviors and structures of inequality

The Inequality of Wealth Liam Byrne, 2024-01-11 The super rich have never had it so good But millions of us can't afford a home an education or a pension And unless we change course soon the future will be even worse Much worse But things don't have to be like this In this bold new book former Treasury Minister Liam Byrne explains why wealth inequality has grown so fast in recent years warns how it threatens our society economy and politics shows where economics has got it wrong and lays out a path back to common sense with five practical ways to rebuild an old ideal the wealth owning democracy Liam Byrne draws on conversations and debates with former prime ministers presidents and policymakers around the world together with experts at the OECD World Bank and IMF to argue that after twenty years of statistics and slogans it s time for solutions that aren t just radical but plausible and achievable as well The future won t be a land of milk and honey but it could be a place where we live longer happier healthier and wealthier lives
