The main objective is to raise awareness promote revalue and preserve the building heritage of the last century through their maintenance and adaptive reuse to the changing needs of the community according to new models of the circular economy and the use of digital technologies. The topics treated with multidisciplinary approaches reconstruct a recent past of which memory has been lost and highlight how the heritage built is a resource of incalculable value that can greatly contribute to the sustainability of cities.

Breakthrough

Homi Kharas, John W. McArthur, Izumi Ohno, 2022-01-25 One overall takeaway is that gradualist approaches will not achieve those goals by 2030. Breakthroughs will be necessary in science in the development of new products and services and in institutional systems. Each of the experts responded with stories that reflect big ambitions for what the future may bring. Their stories are not projections or forecasts as to what will happen; they are reasoned and reasonable conjectures about what could happen. The editors' intent is to provide a glimpse into the possibilities for the future of sustainable development. At a time when many people worry about stalled progress on the economic social and environmental challenges of sustainable development, Breakthrough is a reminder that the promise of a better future is within our grasp across a range of domains. It will interest anyone who wonders about the world's economic social and environmental future.
