Our Greatest Challenge Aboriginal Children And Human Rights:

Our Greatest Challenge Hannah McGlade, 2012 Bravely addressing a complex and fraught issue this book shows non Aboriginal society's ignorance of the traumatic impacts of sexual assault on Aboriginal children. It argues that Aboriginal child sexual assault has been formed within the entrenched societal forces of racism, colonization and patriarchy yet cast in the Australian public domain as an Aboriginal problem. Providing detailed analysis of the legal system's response, this volume shows that while child sexual assault is a criminal offence, the tainted Aboriginal experience of the law prevents the fundamental principle of equality. This discussion also encourages readers to be guided by indigenous human rights concepts and international responses in order to prevent harming future generations. Our Greatest Challenge Hannah McGlade, 2012 Hannah McGlade's book bravely addresses the complex and fraught issue of Aboriginal child abuse. She argues that Aboriginal child sexual assault has been formed within the entrenched societal forces of racism, colonisation and patriarchy yet cast in the Australian public domain as an Aboriginal problem with controversial government responses critiqued as racist and paternalistic. McGlade highlights that non Aboriginal society has yet to acknowledge the traumatic impacts of the sexual assault on Aboriginal children which was part and parcel of the European project of civilisation. She provides detailed analysis of the legal system's response. While child sexual assault is a criminal offence, the Aboriginal experience of the law is tainted. Despite reforms to the law, the courtroom experience is based on re-victimisation and trauma which prevents the fundamental principle of equality before the law. McGlade believes that we should be guided by Indigenous human rights concepts and international Indigenous responses in addressing the problem. In doing so, she believes that we can help to stem the harm to future generations. Indigenous Children's Right to Participate in Law and Policy Development Holly Doel-Mackaway, 2021-09-28 This book presents a model for reforming and developing Indigenous related legislation and policy not only in Australia but also in other jurisdictions. The model provides guidance about how to seek listen to and respond to the voices of Indigenous children and young people. The participation of Indigenous children and young people when carried out in a culturally and age appropriate way and based on free prior and informed consent is an invaluable resource capable of empowering children and young people and informing Indigenous related legislation and policy. This project contributes to the emerging field of robust ethically sound participatory research with Indigenous children and young people and proposes ways in which Australian and international legislators and policymakers can implement the principle of children's participation by involving Aboriginal children and young people in the development of law and policy pertaining to their lives. This book provides accounts from Aboriginal children and young people detailing their views on how they can be involved in law and policy development in the future. It shows the latest state of knowledge on the topic and will be of interest to researchers, academics, policymakers, legislators and students in the fields of human rights law, children's rights, participation rights, Indigenous peoples law and family child and social welfare law. Decolonising Indigenous

Child Welfare Terri Libesman, 2013-12-04 During the past decade a remarkable transference of responsibility to Indigenous children's organisation has taken place in many parts of Australia Canada the USA and New Zealand It has been influenced by Indigenous peoples human rights advocacy at national and international levels by claims to self determination and by the globalisation of Indigenous children's organisations Thus far this reform has taken place with little attention from academic and non Indigenous communities now Decolonising Indigenous Child Welfare Comparative Perspectives considers these developments and evaluating law reform with respect to Indigenous child welfare asks whether the pluralisation of responses to their welfare and well being within a cross cultural post colonial context can improve the lives of Indigenous children The legislative frameworks for the delivery of child welfare services to Indigenous children are assessed in terms of the degree of self determination which they afford Indigenous communities The book draws upon interdisciplinary research and the author's experience collaborating with the peak Australian Indigenous children's organisation for over a decade to provide a thorough examination of this international issue Dr Terri Libesman is a Senior Lecturer in the Law Faculty at the University of Technology Sydney She has collaborated researched and published for over a decade with the peak Australian Indigenous children's organisation Westerly, 2017 See What You Made Me Do Jess Hill, 2020-10-01 Every year in England and Wales alone one in twenty adults suffer domestic abuse two thirds of them women Every week two men kill a woman they were intimate with And still we ask the wrong question Why didn't she leave Instead we should ask Why did he do it Investigative journalist Jess Hill puts perpetrators and the systems that enable them in the spotlight Her radical reframing of domestic abuse takes us beyond the home to explore how power culture and gender intersect to both produce and normalise abuse She boldly confronts uncomfortable questions about how and why society creates abusers but can't seem to protect their victims and shows how we can end this dark cycle of fear and control See What You Made Me Do is a profound and bold confrontation of this urgent crisis and its deep roots It will challenge everything you thought you knew about domestic abuse
