How Community Gardens Work Louise Spilsbury, 2013-08-01

Some cities offer their residents lots of cool restaurants, arts activities, and business opportunities, but few green spaces. Poorer areas may have empty lots or abandoned buildings and no nearby parks. Community gardens are a great idea for either of these scenarios and so many more. Through inspiring descriptions of the benefits of community gardens, including their positive ecological impact, readers will run to the nearest plot of land to start a garden. From the science of composting and organic farming to health topics like fitness and healthy eating, the motivating content will introduce readers to the fun of community gardens, which can bring communities together, help the environment, and provide a good use for unused lots. Bright, colorful photographs and descriptive sidebars and fact boxes will draw readers in, even more than if they haven't already started planting their garden.

A Decolonial and Anti-Racist Transformative Autoethnographic Journey toward Reconciliation Jebunnessa Chapola, 2024-07-08

While many non-Indigenous academic researchers have introduced the concept of reconciliation in their work, they have not adequately explored what it means for transnational immigrants and refugee communities to view reconciliation as a source of knowledge and understanding. How can assuming responsibility for reconciliation empower immigrant and refugee women communities? Why should immigrant and refugee communities embrace decolonial and anti-racist ways of knowing and acting to foster meaningful relationships with Indigenous communities? What does it entail to comprehend decolonial and anti-racist learning and practice as a system of reciprocal social relations and ethical practices as a framework for reconciliation? Decolonial and Anti-racist Transformative Autoethnographic Journey toward Reconciliation: A Racialized Immigrant Woman's Empowering Stories aims to address these interdisciplinary questions. It endeavors not only to challenge our static comprehension of reconciliation but also to demonstrate how assuming responsibility for relearning decolonial and anti-racist meanings in our everyday practices is essential These include cultivating respectful relationships with Indigenous peoples honoring Indigenous Treaties taking steps to decolonize our ways of knowing and acting understanding the impacts of colonial education processes preserving our Land and environment ensuring food security and nutritional adequacy fostering intercultural spaces for social interactions and promoting transnational empowerment Community in Bloom ,2025 The Public Garden ,2004
