Davies,2022-04-11 This survey of the rise and decline of English watchmaking fills a gap in the historiography of British industry Clerkenwell in London was supplied with rough movements from Prescott 200 miles away in Lancashire Smaller watchmaking hubs later emerged in Coventry Liverpool and Birmingham The English industry led European watchmaking in the late eighteenth century in output and its lucrative export markets extended to the Ottoman Empire and China It also made marine chronometers the most complex of hand crafted pre industrial mechanisms crucially important to the later hegemony of Britain's navy and merchant marine. Although Britain was the workshop of the world its watchmaking industry declined. Why? First because cheap Swiss watches were smuggled into British markets. Later in the era of Free Trade they were joined by machine made watches from factories in America enabled by the successful application to watch production of the American system in Waltham Massachusetts after 1858. The Swiss watch industry adapted itself appropriately, expanded and reasserted its lead in the world's markets. English watchmaking did not. Its trajectory foreshadowed and was later followed by other once prominent British industries. Clerkenwell retained its pre industrial production methods. Other modernization attempts in Britain had limited success or failed.
